Women Past 50
A Robot Pilot
The Street's Merriest Day
Improving Sailors Caps
—By Arthur Brisbane—

THANKS TO Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, girls and women UNEMPLOYED AND UNMARRIED, from 16 to 45 years of age, will have an opportunity to enter camps and earn a living until times improve. Some women who applied, past 50 and not eligible, "wept bitterly." For women past 50 the world does the least and should do the most.

Comdr. Frank Hawks, flying from Los Angeles to New York, "non-stop," is sitting quietly, hands idle, watching a "robot pilot" run the machine.

Twenty-five years ago few would believe that airships could ever really fly.

Suppose you had suggested that they would fly, piloted and controlled by a "robot," or artificial man. What would have been said?

Men can do whatever they can IMAGINE, and many things more.

Yesterday was the "maddest, merriest day of all the glad new year," 1933, in Wall Street. Stocks rose from one to ten dollars a share. "Big Steel" really began to be big once more, passing $54 a share. Only a little while ago, poor old "Big Steel" was drifting around $23 a share, and lower. It is the solemn truth that "hope is stronger than memory."

And think of the happy, smiling faces of brokers, when they saw stocks selling for a while at 3,000,000 shares an hour, with total sales for the day 6,500,000 shares.

Sorrow is in the hearts of those that sold their Stock Exchange seats too cheap, and hope is reborn for those that predicted seats at $1,000,000 each.

The Associated Press says "The Navy Department has ordered greater 'rake' and 'flare' in enlisted men's caps." They must have the "required rake in the crown," and the sides must be "padded, to give the required flare."

All that is intensely satisfactory. Words cannot express our joy, learning that our enlisted navy men will no longer wear caps which lack rake and flare. That being settled, perhaps those in charge of government defense will look into the matter of airplanes, and get a little more "rake" in that direction. That would be appreciated.

Various straws tell you that the wind of chance is blowing away depression. Lawrence P. Fisher, vice-president of General Motors and head of the Cadillac Company, announces that Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., head of General Motors, has authorized a 5 per cent wage increase, which affects 100,000 employes of the company.

This partial restoration of previous wage reductions will be welcome to the men. It is to be hoped that the example set by Mr. Sloan, in General Motors, will be followed by other industrial concerns wherever earnings make it possible.

All newspaper men and the whole country will learn, with regret, of the very serious illness of Cyrus H. K. Curtis, who is 83 years old, and said to be "very ill."

Mr. Curtis is suffering from the after effects of a severe heart attack, which occurred a year ago. His has been a long, honorable life of useful work. He has made many friends; no enemies.

In the death house of Sing Sing and other prisons, when the zero hour comes the condemned man may order anything he wants to eat. It was the turn of William H. Jackson, a 40-year-old Negro from Niagara Falls, yesterday morning, and he said: "Make it a triple steak, warden. It's my last one."

He ate all of the triple steak, with several plates of "French fried potatoes," but never digested them. Guards dressed him to the electric chair. The current, which no man understands, sent him to the place about which no man knows anything.

Different men die in different ways.

Mr. Hitler advanced new ideas. Women must stay in the home, to attend to things there. They must not earn a living for themselves.

Some men will sympathize with that, but not the best men. The best will agree that a woman has a right to do exactly as she pleases, but hope that she will marry, create beautiful children and be happy.

Mr. Hitler also declares that he will allow no work to be done by machinery, if it can be done by hand. Industrialists competing with German industry will be pleased with that. Man power, without the aid of German industrial and mechanical genius, would never have built up Germany's interests and exports.

WORLD FLIER HEADS OUT OVER SEA

Mattern Sighted 150 Miles North of Harbor Grace

BULLETIN

Lewisport, N. F., June 3 (AP)—James J. Mattern passed over Lewisport on Notre Dame Bay at 12:09 p. m. (E. S. T.) in his hop across the Atlantic on a round-the-world flight.

Lewisport is approximately 150 miles northwest of Harbor Grace.

New York, June 3 (AP)—Jimmie Mattern of Texas, who set forth on his solo flight around the world today, had passed Harbor Grace at noon and was heading for Europe.

Mattern, youthful San Angelo former trap drummer and jack of all trades who proved his mettle by flying to Siberia last year, took off from Floyd Bennett Field at 4:20 a. m. Eastern Standard Time.

Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, whose record Mattern hopes to lower single handed, made the first leg of their journey to Harbor Grace, N. F., in six hours and 52 minutes.

IN HIGH SPIRITS

Mattern was in high spirits as he taxied his plane to the far end of the long concrete runway this morning.

"I'll be seeing you," he called to friends. And then he added: "In a week," and grinned.

The Post-Gatty record is eight days, 15 hours and 51 minutes.

Mattern said he would make no stop at Harbor Grace, where Post and Gatty lay over for three hours and 40 minutes, but would head out across the open sea.

HEADED FOR PARIS

"I'm aiming for Paris," he said, "and if I have enough juice left when I get there I won't stop but will keep right on to Moscow."

He expected to make Paris in 27 hours and had no fear of falling asleep on the way. There is a contrivance connected with his altimeter to prevent this.

Should he drop off to sleep the plane would dive or glide downward, and when the altitude reaches a certain low the altimeter turns on an appliance so arranged as to squirt cold water in the pilot's face, this rousing him.

AL PROVES POOR DODGER

ED BRANDT AL LOPEZ

Brandt proved that Catcher Lopez is not much of a dodger, as this great action picture shows. In the 7th frame of the first Friday Wigwam duel, won by the Tribe, 6-1, Brandt broke for home. Lopez tried to run down Ed but the ball was high and Brandt crashed Al. Both went to the ground. Brandt then was tagged out by Stripp.

OTHER MOBS ISSUE DEFI TO POLICE

Resent Glare of Public Censure and Seek Revenge Code

BULLETIN

Arrest of a Cambridge man as owner of the death gun in the Curran murder was predicted by police late this afternoon, after State Detective Michael Fleming and Inspector William Nixon left Cambridge police headquarters hurriedly for an unrevealed destination.

"Steve" Gustin and other Gustin gang leaders have been marked for death by the men who rule the more powerful, more efficient and more smoothly-working gangs in Boston, according to underworld reports today.

The Gustin men have been too reckless and their recklessness has aroused public feeling against gangland, threatening the profitable criminal enterprises of the gangs that operate with more finesse.

Sought by police for the murder of Thomas ("Red") Curran, government witness against Gustin gangsters, and other crimes, the leaders of the South Boston "mob" will meet violent death in gang fashion, if the police do not arrest them soon, it is said.

WENT OUTSIDE FIELD

Their big error in the eyes of organized crime was to go outside the gang to beat up Police Detective D. F. McDonald, purely out of revenge for past arrests. This was an error slick Boston gangsters never would have made.

The Curran murder was an outgrowth of the McDonald beating, and it again was of just the nature to arouse the public.

In addition the leaders of the powerful gangs have scores to settle for many annoyances, some petty and some not so petty, in the past.

But, knowing of their danger, yet reckless as ever, members of the Gustin gang are plotting to rob a Nantasket "big shot," a man with influential gang connections, according to reports received by the police today.

POLICE AMBUSH FAILS.

So plausible were these reports, that Lieut. John J. McArdle, Sergt. James Crowley and Sergt. Francis Maguire, all of whom are working on the Curran murder, waited in

3 MORGAN PARTNERS FACE INCOME TAX GRILLING

PECORA-LAMONT-DAVIS FIGHT TO BE DECIDED MONDAY

Washington, June 3 (AP)—The income tax returns of three members of J. P. Morgan & Co. are now the special objective of Senate investigators of the banking firm.

If the committee permits, when the inquiry is resumed Monday, Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, will question Thomas S. Lamont, William Ewing and Harold Stanley about their personal stock transactions in connection with their income tax returns.

Pecora had started questioning Lamont yesterday, but a quick challenge by John W. Davis, Morgan counsel and former Democratic presidential candidate, blocked him.

FHELD BY FLETCHER

Chairman Fletcher ruled Pecora's question pertinent, but young Lamont pleaded uncertain memory and was given the week-end to refresh it. Then Davis appealed to Fletcher for an executive meeting to consider the propriety of the questioning. This in effect was an appeal for reversal of Fletcher's decision, but the chairman acquiesced and set the meeting for Monday before the public investigation opens.

But today Fletcher disclosed the committee actually had passed on the point last Wednesday when it approved the program mapped out by Pecora, who told members he planned to inquire into the personal transactions of the three partners. Since then one of Pecora's strongest supporters, Sen. Cougens (R.), Michigan, has left for the London economic conference, opening some doubt about the committee's decision.

IORGAN REAL CZAR

This is only one of several tax questions about the Morgan firm, since it was testified in the first week of the investigation that the 20 partners paid only $38,000 income tax in 1930 and none since. Department of justice and bureau of internal revenue studies have resulted, though there has been no public indication of law violation. Specially examined was the firm's partnership agreement, made public this week by the Senate committee.

It showed that J. P. Morgan, the senior partner, has dominant power over the firm, its operations and its make-up.

The session yesterday ended the second week of inquiry, and the committee hopes to conclude by Tuesday night, turning to scrutiny of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the following week.

Pecora still has a mass of evidence to present on the Morgan financial creation of the Van Sweringen railroad empire through the Alleghany Corporation.

Also he has a final list of selected clients of the firm, which investigators say shows one group was sold Johns-Manville stock at cost and others had to pay a little more.

Morgan's Own Profits, 17 Years, $75,000,000

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
Copyright, 1933, by International News Service

Washington, June 3 (INS)—J. Pierpont Morgan has an interest of slightly less than 25 per cent in the profits of the giant international banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Company, International News Service learned today.

The son of the founder of the House of Morgan—now its titular head—invested half of the approximate $50,000,000 capital with which the present partnership was launched on March 31, 1916. He then acquired a 25 per cent interest in all profits—and an equal liability for all losses.

The interests of other partners slide down the scale to 1 per cent. None of them has as much as a 20 per cent interest.

Morgan has taken virtually one-fourth of all the firm's divided profits since 1916. During that period the partnership has paid $51,538,000 in income taxes, and it would be fair to assume that Morgan paid around one-fourth, or about $12,000,000, of this total.

The records filed with the Senate investigating committee shed some light on this subject.

For instance, the firm listed its assets on Dec. 31, 1932, as $424,706,085. This would make Morgan's share worth in the neighborhood of $100,000,000 if the partnership were dissolved now.

Morgan Could Fall Into Ocean, Come Up Dusty, Says Runyon

By DAMON RUNYON
Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service, Inc.

Washington, June 3—If Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan should fall into a barrel of onion soup—may the fates forfend! the chances are he would come up with a rose in his hand.

At least you gather this impression from the testimony in the Senate inquiry into the private financial life of Mr. Morgan.

In one of the darkest hours of the long, long night of Wall St. gloom, Mr. Morgan—or rather some of Mr. Morgan's bright young bladers—joined with other financiers in an attempt to prop up the market, at that moment all a-slant like the Leaning Tower of Pisa.

They bought a job lot of those stocks that seemed to be most sadly afflicted with what the deep sea divers call the "bends," and wound up making over $1,000,000 on the rescue mission. Which brings us to the thought that to him who hath shall be given. Also a stitch in time saves nine. Likewise, you can't keep a squirrel on the ground.

TELEPHONE CO. TO CUT FORCE

(By Associated Press)

Officials of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company said today that a force reduction in its plant department was in prospect in the five New England states in which the company operates. The prospective reduction was necessitated, they said, by a slowing up of construction and replacement, the company having lost 150,000 telephones in recent years.

The number of employes affected, it was explained, would not be determined today but officials said it would probably "not be a very large number."

Employes with the longer service records would be retained, the officials said, while any reductions would affect those younger in the service.

Every reasonable attempt has been made, they said, to retain men in service during the winter months by spreading work. A general five-day week had been instituted and, in some instances, the working week has been cut to four days, but there remained, still, a surplus force.

Straus Meets Paul-Boncour

Paris, June 3 (AP)—Jesse Isidor Straus, new American ambassador, presented his credentials today to Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour. An official reception and the presentation of his credentials to President Albert Lebrun will take place within a few days at the Elysee Palace.

CHURCH OUSTS SPAIN'S CHIEFS

Madrid, June 3 (AP)—President Alcala Zamora, members of the Spanish cabinet, and all deputies voting the new religious congregations law, were excommunicated from the Catholic Church today.

The excommunication, effective immediately, was later sententiate, which, under canon law, means it was imposed against those who sign or vote for decrees, laws or orders against the church and its rights.

The new law, basis for the action, made civil societies of religious orders having 28,000 nuns and monks as members, and turned over to the state art treasures worth millions. The law was signed yesterday by Zamora, a devout Catholic. It was understood he signed because he realized no other type of church law could obtain the aproval of Parliament.

Vatican City, June 3 (AP)—Pope Pius unexpectedly issued an important encyclical today on the situation in the Catholic church in Spain. He expressed his deep love for that nation, but profound sorrow for the wrong and injuries he said were done the church.

Blast Rocks New Haven

New Haven, Conn., June 3 (AP)—An explosion here early today destroyed one home and damaged two others. Two men are in a hospital, suffering from burns and cuts. Police said nothing remained in the ruins to indicate its cause.

The Effect of Moving Pictures on Public Morals

THE report of the Motion Picture Research Council reflects an extremely conscientious effort to solve the moral and social problems of the moving picture and to direct this enormously influential educational factor into directions of greatest good to the community.

The powerful formative effect of moving pictures upon the character and mental conceptions of children is thoughtfully considered.

But in this discussion it must fully be realized that moving pictures have developed beyond the point when they were made chiefly for the entertainment and patronage of the young. The moving picture, like the stage, today addresses itself to the adult.

If parents want to take their children to a moving picture, they should make inquiry beforehand as to whether the picture is suitable for children.

They would do this much in every instance with regard to a theatrical play; they would be similarly careful about the character of a book they might give their children to read.

They should be as discriminating with regard to the screen.

* * *

IN some cities like Chicago the censors themselves designate certain pictures as fit for children and others as fit only for adults.

But it is undoubtedly better for parents to take the trouble to make their own decisions on such matters, and surely to consider carefully the character of the pictures they want their children to see.

However, apart from the vital question of what the child should see, there is the equally vital question of what the adult should see and should properly enjoy and encourage.

Sad to say there has been a certain definite degeneracy in the stage of late years.

And apparently there has been a corresponding degeneracy in literature.

There is a tendency for this degeneracy to affect moving pictures; but apparently moving pictures have been kept in the main on a higher plane of morals than the stage or the average book of fiction.

Perhaps this has been due to censorship, although it must be confessed that censorship as a rule has not been particularly conscientious or intelligent.

It operates generally by rule and routine, on the one hand, or by personal prejudice on the other and varies to such a degree in different states that moving picture producers hardly know what to do to satisfy the contradictory requirements of the censors; consequently producers are disposed very largely to make their pictures regardless of the censors and let the censors of each state mutilate the productions as their fancy dictates.

* * *

THE censorship would be much more effective for good if it were unified or at least harmonized—if there were perhaps federal censorship or at least an agreement among the censor boards of the different states as to what was permissible in pictures and what objectionable.

There must be a recognition of the obvious fact that a certain character of sex pictures and crime pictures are demoralizing, even if these pictures fail to violate the detail of rules and proscriptions made by the censor boards.

A spirit of vulgarity or lewdness or licentiousness is sometimes much more demoralizing than an objectionable phrase or incident.

The censors eliminate vigorously improper phrases and incidents and frequently many that are of little or no impropriety, but seldom take into consideration a pervading spirit of lewdness or vulgarity.

* * *

WHAT is required in the situation is not more censorship, but more intelligent censorship, more thoughtful and judicious censorship, and in many cases more liberal censorship.

Such more intelligent censorship would have a great amount of co-operation from the producers, who are discouraged from co-operation at present by the unjustifiable and sometimes inexplicable performance of some of the censorship boards.

The screen should be saved from the degeneracy of the stage and of modern literature, because as an indisputable fact the screen is much more of an educational factor than either literature or the stage drama.

In the first place it is, to a certain degree, patronized by every class and stratum of society and by individuals of every age.

In the second place, it permeates the whole nation, invading the smallest towns and appealing to the public in those small communities that hitherto knew nothing of the theater.

The screen must be regarded in the main as an educating and liberalizing influence; demoralizing factors must be excluded from it carefully but intelligently.

The maintainance of the screen as an uplifting, rather than a debasing, influence should be undertaken entirely regardless of the fact that the screen may not now be regarded mainly as entertainment for children.

There is obviously no reason why adults should be demoralized.

* * *

IN fact, as far as consistent with interest and entertainment, the enormous educational value of the screen should be employed to improve the taste and culture and moral standard of the adult.

There should be in the screen some of the sense of obligation to society that exists in the press.

It should be one of the objects of the producers of high class moving pictures to employ the enormous influence of the screen for purposes beneficial to the community.

The argument is often heard that vulgar pictures and lewd pictures are made because the public demands them.

This is not a good excuse, not even a good apology.

There may be an element of the public which patronizes prurience and vulgarity, but the screen should appeal to the better element of the public and endeavor by the constant presentation of pictures of high quality and character and equally high entertainment value to educate the lower element of the public out of its debased tastes. This is the important contribution the screen may make to moral and cultural progress.

Of course the box office must be considered by managers and producers who are in business for material success and for dividends, but careful analysis of box office receipts shows that many of the highest quality pictures with the noblest themes have been the best money makers.

Granted that an easy way for some producers to make money is by prostituting the screen to prurient appeal, but moving pictures as a whole have reached such a position of dignity and importance in the community that the better producers should, and do, recognize this dignity and importance, and appreciate the obligation to society that this situation implies and imposes.

BACON WARNS OF POLITICS

Concord, N. H., June 3—Lieut. Gov. Gaspar G. Bacon of Massachusetts, speaking at St. Paul's school anniversary exercises, today touched upon the same theme used by Mills, relative to the disappointments and uncertainties of a public career and:

"If you campaign for public office, you may be sure you will be attacked viciously and that issues wholly foreign to the main questions considered will be brought into the battle.

"We need not despair of politics, however, when it can enlist the interest and men of the caliber of Governor John G. Winant, George H. Moses and Ogden L. Mills."

Mills, also a speaker, warned the students against entering, unless they had business interests to turn to "if necessary," for a living.

House Joins Senate in Revolt Against Vet Cuts

Washington, June 3 (AP) — Speaker Rainey told newspapermen today the "House is in as much revolt as the Senate" against President Roosevelt's economy program as it affects veterans.

The Speaker predicted that "unless President Roosevelt signifies that he won't stand for it" the $170,000,000 increase in veterans' outlay put into the independent offices bill by the Senate would be "accepted by the House."

Rainey said there "might be some modification" of the Senate amendment reducing cuts in veterans' benefits to a maximum of 25 per cent and he presumed "an effort will be made to get in touch with the President to learn his views on it."

Representative Byrns of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, also said "a majority of the House is in revolt against the regulations affecting veterans."

He explained this was indicated at the recent caucus which authorized a committee to protest to the President the regulations promulgated by Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, and Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, veterans' administrator.

Byrns added that the independent offices bill would not come up in the House until Monday. It will then be decided whether to send it to conference.

MRS. ROOSEVELT REVISES TRIP

Washington, June 3 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today announced a revised route for her western air trip which will take her through Fort Worth and Dallas, Texas, and Tucson, Arizona, eliminating the Grand Canyon.

Mrs. Roosevelt plans to leave the White House tomorrow morning to visit her son, Elliott, in California.

She explained today that her friend, Miss Nancy Cook, to whom she planned to show the Grand Canyon, would be unable to make the trip because of illness of her father.

The change of plans followed.

Under the revised plan she will leave Washington by air at 9 a. m., with the idea of reaching her friend, Mrs. Isabella Greenway, in Tucson Monday at 4:15 p. m.

She then expects to fly to Los Angeles, arriving there at 8:15 p.m., Tuesday. She will begin the return trip to Washington at 7 a. m., Thursday.

ONE ROOSEVELT PROGRAM SHOT FULL OF HOLES

Finance Committee Riddles Industrial Control Measure

Washington, June 3 (AP)—The administration's industrial control bill today appeared shot so full of holes by finance-committee amending that a struggle on the Senate floor will be necessary to get it back in shape.

Hurrying to get it reported, the committee struck out the licensing provision drawn to compel objecting industries to co-operate; voted in authority for the President to embargo imports, and rejected the administration's plan for regulation of the oil industry.

Chairman Harrison (D.) of Mississippi vowed he would continue in the Senate to defeat these changes, asserting the licensing provision was the "only effective weapon" in the bill to prevent cut-throat industrial competition.

HELD OVER HIS HEAD

It was designated as a sort of "birch rod in the cupboard," ostensibly not to be used, but to remain as a constant reminder to any business that the Government was ready to act if it refused to join in voluntary trade agreements in control of competition and production, boost employment and wages.

A warning that labor would urge rejection by Congress of the act should it be revised to deny labor th right to organize and bargain collectively was issued today by President Green of the Federation of Labor.

MANUFACTURERS LOBBY

The statement was made public as several hundred members of the National Association of Manufacturers convened at the Mayflower hotel to insist upon changes in the measure passed by the House, including the labor provisions.

Green said labor would "appeal to its friends in Congress to vote against the bill if the labor sections, as adopted by the House of representatives, are eliminated or modified."

The Senate squared off today on the gold clause cancellation bill. Leader Robinson (D., Ark.) frankly wanted it through by nightfall, but had to reckon with the bitter opposition of Senators Glass (D., Va.), Reed (R., Pa.) and Kean (R., N. J.), leaders of the minority denouncing the measure as repudiation and national dishonor.

COMPROMISE ON VETERANS

The Senate itself had passed, at last, the independent offices appropriation, but only after a $170,000,000 increase in veterans' funds had been voted and, by the margin of Vice-President Garner's vote, a compromise limit of 25 per cent had been put on all cuts in world war service-connected disability compensation and pensions of Spanish War veterans.

This was estimated to make the veterans' savings $250,000,000 a year instead of the $400,000,000

AIRPLANE ROARS TO SEA TO RESCUE WOUNDED SAILOR

BROUGHT BACK TO HOSPITAL AT CHELSEA

Radio Instructions Aid Man Slowly Bleeding to Death

A Coast Guard amphibian plane roared 100 miles out to sea from Gloucester today and returned to Boston with Emil Sears, a fisherman, who was transferred to the plane from the trawler Boston, in danger of bleeding to death.

Radio sent the plane to the aid of the fisherman and radio carried instructions on how to treat him in the emergency.

Comdr. J. A. Starr at the Coast Guard headquarters in the Custom House received the call for aid and after dispatching the plane, obtained instructions on treatment from Chelsea Marine Hospital.

The plans on returning descended in the harbor and transferred Sears to a Coast Guard patrol boat. He was landed by boat at the airport and rushed to the hospital.

The man was deeply cut on the chin last night by a boning knife and at 10 o'clock this morning the fishing captain radioed for aid.

The message gave the name and position of the trawler and said:

"Man bleeding badly. Condition grave. Radio instructions."

The answering message was:

"Bind tightly and apply cold packs steadily until plane arrives."

The radio flash, prescribing emergency treatment, evidently saved the man for on arrival at the airport the flow of blood had stopped and he was able to walk up the ramp with assistance.

STUDENTS DENY BURNING FLAG AT AMHERST

Plead Not Guilty in Court; Stage a Big Rally on Campus

Northampton, June 3 (AP)—Five 19-year-old Amherst College freshmen appeared before Judge John W. Mason in district court today and pleaded not guilty to "publicly mutilating and treating contemptuously the flag of the United States."

The youths arrested yesterday by state police after complaint had been made that they had burned a flag during a Communist meeting on the campus, are: Henry K. Stanley of Providence, R. I.; Vernon Hall of Montclair, N. J.; George F. Gillet of Kenilworth, Ill., and Roger R. Wenderlich and Robert Lauren of New York.

The boys were represented by Thomas R. Hickey, Northampton lawyer, an Amherst alumnus, and the case was continued until June 9 for a hearing. The boys were permitted to remain under bail of $200 each.

TWO ARE SUSPENDED

Two of the boys involved in the flag burning episode were suspended from college yesterday, but the college authorities declined to announce their names. In announcing the suspension, the authorities described the demonstration as a "mock Communist meeting."

Last night students at the college staged a counter demonstration to offset the unpleasantness of Thursday's affair. Hundreds of students lined the campus walks and cheered loudly as an automobile, draped with a huge American flag, drove slowly back and forth.

HELD COLLEGE PRANK

College authorities are convinced the flag burning, while ill-advised, was the result of a student prank rather than any Communistic leanings on the part of those involved. It was stated authoritatively that four of the five students arrested were of distinctly conservative leanings and that the entire affair was intended as a "mock Communistic rally."

TOOTHACHE OPENS CELL

STATE BREWERS PAY $190,075

Thomas W. White, collector of internal revenue, today announced that the federal receipts from the manufacture and sale of beer in Massachusetts amounted to $190,075 during the month of May.

As compared with the receipts for April of $236,975, there was a loss of $46,900, attributed by White to the fact that more beer from outside the state is being consumed here now than was available when 3.2 per cent beer was legalized on April 7.

A total of 38,015 barrels of beer were manufactured in the state by eight licensed brewers, on which the tax of $190,075 was levied at the rate of $5 a barrel.

Dr. Magrath Aids in Missing Girl Hunt

In the role of Sherlock Holmes, and not in his usual role of pathologist, Dr. George Burgess Magrath, Boston medical examiner, was called to New Hampshire to try to solve the mystery in the disappearance of two-year-old Sarah Walker.

This was revealed today by County Solicitor Preston B. Smart of Carroll County, who disclosed also that it was Gov. John G. Winant who called on Dr. Magrath to assist New Hampshire authorities, not as doctor but as detective.

Sarah Walker disappeared from her home in Ossipee, May 1. Some officials believed she was killed by an auto and her body hidden. Others accounted for her death in other ways.

Ann Grover, Stubborn Heiress, Must Serve Term in Prison

Ann Grover, 17-year-old foster daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Grover, wealthy and socially prominent Lynn couple, was sentenced to an indefinite term at Sherborn today on an old charge of larceny.

Ann's desire for complete independence and pretty clothes coupled with an aversion for work caused Miss Helen Osgood, Lynn probation officer, in whose custody she was placed last fall, to cause her probation to be revoked.

Ann Grover

In Lynn court today, Judge Reeves pronounced sentence he had suspended last October when Ann was found guilty of forging her foster mother's name to a check for $26.

According to Miss Osgood, Ann left her Lynn home several months ago and went to live in a Boston club for working girls. Miss Osgood said Ann did not work, as far as she could discover, and kept late hours.

Most of the testimony in court was given in whispers at the bench. Mrs. Grover was present, and apparently offered no objection to her foster daughter's sentence.

Last fall, Ann was the center of widespread publicity when she ran away from home and defied police to find her in a Boston hideout. She was finally arrested after an altercation with a cab driver.

Six persons, including two small children, were driven to the street, a police officer was affected by smoke while doing rescue work, and damage of $500 was caused by fire in a three-story dwelling in Lamartine st., Roxbury today.

Police say the blaze started on the third floor, which is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rowan. They were aroused by their daughter, Ruth, nine, who told them her brother, Thomas, seven, had started a fire in a closet, while playing with matches.

The blaze spread rapidly and smoke filled the building. Rowan aided his family, while police assisted Hector Jones and Stephen Ellsworth, second floor residents, to safety. Patrolman John M. Conroy suffered from smoke inhalation rescuing a cat and three kittens.

TRIP DELIGHTS MRS. COSTELLO

Mrs. Jessie B. Costello, alleged poison slayer of her husband, was in a happy mood today after a trip from her cell at Salem jail to Peabody, where, by court order, she was allowed to undergo treatment by a dentist.

Asked how it seemed to visit Peabody, where her home is, and where she has not been since her indictment, weeks ago, the accused widow said:

"Things will be much better when I get back there to stay, and my trial can't come too quick for me.

"But it was wonderful to be there a little while and I would have stayed longer if they'd let me."

She was driven to Peabody by Sheriff Raymond and accompanied by a deputy sheriff and a matron, Mrs. Rachel Craig, who went with her to the office of Dr. William F. Callahan on Central st. X-rays were required, making it impossible to do the work in the jail.

Springfield, June 3—Frederick Lord, 20, son of a Dartmouth College professor, admitted in Springfield court today that he was vagabonding about the country in company of a Detroit co-ed while he had a wife living in Detroit.

Lord and his co-ed companion, Miss Lillian Lowe, a student at Detroit City College, were arrested Thursday in the West Springfield freight yards where they were about to board a freight train for Chicago.

'CHARLEY CHAN' ON SCREEN AGAIN | Love Interest | STARS THRONG STAGE AND SCREEN

Warner Oland Again Selected for Chinese Detective Role in Fox Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service
(Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, June 3—Earl Derr Biggers, creator of "Charley Chan" has passed on. His fictional character, however, continues to live and will continue so long as there are any "Charley Chan" stories unfilmed. The Fox Company is now making arrangements to produce "Charley Chan's Greatest Case" with Warner Oland in his usual role of the Chinese detective.

Poor Warner Oland never gets a chance to play anything but an Oriental, but he does play these Chinese roles effectively. Heather Angel, Fox's English actress, who, everyone says, will have us all talking after "Berkeley Square," will be co-featured with Oland. It will be made under the supervision of Sol Wurtzel, with Hamilton McFadden directing.

Radio to Keep Joan?

One picture for Joan Bennett at Radio and then what? Joan has been under contract to the Fox Company for the last few years, but under a mutual agreement there will be no re-signing of Constance Bennett's little sister with Fox. She has however, been signed for the part of Amy in "Little Women," opposite Katharine Hepburn at Radio, and the chances are that she will remain on. What will happen with two Bennetts on the same lot? Despite many rumors to the contrary the two girls really get on very well.

Clive Wins

We don't have enough quarrels these days to make them really worth while. No more is there a good battle than it gets all patched up. Clive Brook, who was rowing with Paramount over bad stories has kissed and made up. His principal grievance, the scenario of "Midnight Club," has been rewritten to suit him. He will have with him George Raft, Helen Vinson and Alison Skipworth. What, Alison again? Heavens, she is in every picture that comes out of Paramount! And she says they never tell her a word about it.

Adolphe Coming Back

Adolphe Menjou, as all the world knows, is in New York. He dashed away and took the chief after he and his wife had some difficulties. Menjou was much in evidence at the parties given in the big town by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. and Noel Coward, and they tell me he contributed considerably to the occasion by his wit and gayety. He is coming back soon, however, for he has been signed by Jack Warner on a long term contract as a Warner Brothers star. I call that smart of Jack for Adolphe is a swell actor. His first will be "Convention City," originally intended for William Powell. 'Tis the story of a super salesman.

Derby in makeup; MONROE mistaken for DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR.; FRANCIS LEDERER house-hunting; now living in the Hollywood Athletic Club and studying for his first American movie; REX BELL in town for a few days; CLARA BOW still on the Nevada ranch, dieting and getting ready for her next picture; WILLIAM R. ## Laurel and Hardy Provide Much Hilarity on State Screen

By HARRIS MORGAN

There is something startling in the idea of Mr. Laurel and Mr. Hardy being heroes of a screen operetta with an historical background. It is rather as if the Four Marx brothers decided to revive "Julius Caesar" or Harold Lloyd appeared amidst the hanging gardens of Babylon. Nevertheless, Messrs. Laurel and Hardy are actually in "The Devil's Brother" at the State, and what is more they are the principal prop of that entertainment. Both wear wigs, peculiar raiment and buckled shoes, both seem to be residents of an ancient Italy. And both have their violent moments of hilarity.

Since "The Devil's Brother" is a loose adaptation of "Fra Diabolo," operetta by Auber, which enjoyed a palmy reputation on the stage, Mr. Hardy and Mr. Laurel are inserted as a pair of comic servants, whose adventures in serving the Duke of San Marco, who was a bandit on the side, are as extraordinary as they are amusing. It is quite true that this pair of comedians cannot maintain a constant hilarity; the creaky old plot rather cheats them of that. But here, they may as well, as they stand forth; Mr. Laurel playing parlor tricks and looking forlorn, Mr. Hardy complete unto the utmost expression of pain and incredulity upon his broad face.

Dennis King

Probably they should not be the principal figures in the film for Mr. Dennis King plays the devil's brother. But while Mr. King can sing pleasantly, he has not yet mastered the art of screen acting, and his failings are many and obvious.

Nor is Miss Thelma Todd any outstanding figure. She has obviously been given a role that does not suit her abilities, and she does not bother to struggle much with it.

Of the operetta itself, the music has defied age the best. The tunes are bright even if they do tinkle a bit.

But when it came to directing "The Devil's Brother," Hollywood apparently found itself at a loss. Mr. Hal Roach, known as a comedy expert, supervised the production, and put it on as stiffly as if it were on stage.

Choruses stalk about in a wooden way, the action is slow or altogether lacking; in short every opportunity has been missed—save where Laurel and Hardy are concerned.

"International House" Shows Favorites in New Stunts; Noble Sissle on Stage

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

When you put Noble Sissle and his band on stage, and throw Cab Calloway and his jazz-makers on screen, you have something to talk about, from the Harlem viewpoint. Toss in further, Fabien Sevitzky and his premier orchestra on the boards, and on the silver sheet reveal Rudy Vallee, Burns & Allen, and other radio and Hollywood luminaries, with Peggy Hopkins Joyce in for extra good measure, you get a program which couldn't be matched for names outside a mammouth benefit show. No showman could afford to set forth all these celebrities on an "in person" bill. And as if that weren't enough, the Metropolitan is adding for tomorrow, another broadcasting highlight, Lanny Ross—"in the flesh."

The means whereby the Met's screen entangles so many "big names" is entitled "International House." That's because the grand hotel, locale of the theme, is the headquarters for folks of all nations, and located somewhere (you'll never find it on the map!) in China. No, it's not a tale of Japanese fighting in that far land; rather a fanciful hodge-podge of a yarn seemingly turned to work in as many Occidental stars as possible. From the entertainment angle, the picture is best regarded as a panorama permitting performers a place in the sun of audience favor. As photoplay, "International House" doesn't take a rating.

Lanny Ross

The film is a sort of glorified vaudeville camera special. Its best numbers are topped by George Burns and Gracie Allen, who beget plenty of laughter. You run across Col. Stoopnagle and Budd, you see W. C. Fields enjoying himself and making hilarious whoopee for the onlookers; Baby Rose Marie in one number; Miss Joyce becoming a one-woman fashion show, and even Bela Lugosi, of horror fame, trying to be funny. As a merry mad medley it is well enough. The plot is crazy as can be, yet you will like Stuart Erwin, Sari Maritza, Edmund Breese and Franklin Pangborn, who is excellent as the manager of the grandly grand hotel.

So much for the unusual assortment the screen offers. On stage, there is coherence, and there is also high quality. The Sissle troupe of Negro talent is superfine, and they get a big hand. All their numbers and all their antics go over nicely. Mr. Sevitzky and his musicians achieve their usual weekly triumph.

For names the Met never had so many on one bill; its marquee over Tremont st., large as it is, could never hold the full personnel of its current show.

"Dinner at Eight" Is to Remain Three Weeks

Exceptional business done by "Dinner At Eight," at the Shubert, has prompted Sam H. Harris to extend the engagement of the Kaufman-Ferber opus for a third week.

Star at Bowdoin

Ethel Grenier, radio star, heads the stage bill at the Bowdoin beginning tomorrow. There will be six acts of standard merit. On screen the theater has two pictures, one of them a magnificent talkie, "Looking Forward."

"Reunion in Vienna" Is Hailed as Masterful Film

A photoplay of exceeding merit on screen, and a superior vaudeville bill, are the features of the Loew's Orpheum program. "Reunion in Vienna" is the picture, beautifully made in every particular, and headed by a cast which has John Barrymore in one of his most successful cinema roles.

Barrymore has a role that matches his own talents and personality as though tailored to his measure. Diana Wynyard acquits herself none the less brilliantly as the lady for whose kisses the exiled archduke thirsted. She radiates a warm humanness in the role and manages to retain regal refinement, even in moments demanding a yielding common to women of lesser dignity. Sidney Franklin, who directed the film, may be credited with another masterful job.

John Barrymore

Frank Morgan is excellent in the part of Dr. Krug, the psychiatrist who diagnoses his wife's aberrations, and the role of his old inquisitive father is well handled by Henry Travers, who played it in the original stage version.

An excellent vaudeville bill is presented. Bob Murphy is topliner. He wins his audience from the first with his stories, "gags" and pleasant humor. During the act he brings on his young son and daughter, who sing, dance and clown, and by their aptitude reveal that they should go a long way on the variety stage.

Another comedy turn on the bill is the one offered by Vic Oliver, European novelty comedian, who is assisted by Margot Crandle in getting across his humor.

Sibyl Bowan is back; on first appearance she won an ovation, and here again she is given cordial reception. Hers is a selection of modern songs which she renders ably.

Other acts are Burno, Whiteside and Anita in a singing and dancing offering, assisted by Frances Pepper and John Elliot; and The De Guchis, Oriental acrobats.

Gayety Theater

The Gayety tomorrow on screen will feature "Sailor's Luck," with James Dunn, Sally Eilers and Sammy Cohen. The co-feature will be "The Parachute Jumper," with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Leo Carillo and Bette Davis. On stage there will be five vaudeville acts.

FAILURE TO WED BOSS' GIRL IS SLUMP CAUSE

If the up and coming college graduates of 1929 had followed his advice and married the boss' daughter, the Depression would have taken a much different turn, according to Prof. Robert E. Rogers, Tech professor and Boston Evening American columnist.

Addressing the present Tech seniors at their annual banquet last night, Prof. Rogers said that the only ones to have suffered would have been the bosses' daughters. He did not explain this reference.

Prof. Rogers did not elaborate on his advice to the class of '29, but affirmed his belief in its soundness.

"The trouble is that they did not do it and we have what we have," he said.

"That fat-headed bunch was just like all the people then. They had avoirdupois of the brain. But you, you have no illusions about becoming vice-presidents. In fact, you are extraordinarily lucky. You are the luckiest boys of this generation; you have no illusions about anything.

"Thirty years from now the leaders will not be the men who fell in the crash of '29 and '30, but those who are starting now. Opportunities are probably greater than they ever have been. There is the opportunity to do something new, invent something new, develop something new, and you men of the class of 1933 are in on the ground floor.

"I will not congratulate you. It's up to you now."

Social Revolt Awaits Youth, Declares Ickes

Washington, Pa., June 13 (AP)—Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, told graduates of Washington & Jefferson College today that they are stepping from a college campus into "the midst of a social revolution."

"Men of my generation are in no boastful spirit when we face an audience like this," he said. "We have made a mess of things.

"In the name of self-government, we sardonically enacted laws only to break them openly and flagrantly. Prohibition statutes were an incitement to bootlegging. Income tax laws were put into the books only to be evaded. We jeered at our legislative bodies; we scoffed at our courts."

"But a new social order is in the making," he added, "and my generation needs your help."

DOUGLAS BARES PROBE OF KITS

Washington, June 3 (AP)—Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, today told the Senate military committee he was not asked to investigate the posible purchase of kits for the reforestation corps until after the contract was let.

Douglas made his statement after Senator Black (D.) of Alabama had paraphrased testimony by Louis Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt, indicating Douglas was called in before the kits were ordered from Bevier & Co. of New York at $1.40, with army officials contending they could duplicate them for 75 to 85 cents.

"So far as turning it (the investigation) over to me, before the contract was let, that is absolutely untrue if that is the inference," Douglas said.

President Roosevelt telephoned him on May 18, Douglas said, and "asked me to investigate" as a result of a report of the quartermaster-general of the army advising against the purchase.

"From there on our investigation began," Douglas said.

THE GUSTIN GANG

Murder Cost Stevie Gang Lead Then Won It Back

By THE MASKED REPORTER

(Copyright, 1933, by the Boston Evening American)

Murder jounced Stevie Wallace out of the driver's seat as leader of the Gustin wolf pack—and bounced him back again.

Masked Reporter

Stevie was waived on because of his part in the slaying of James "Lefty" Wright. Murder then was foreign to the Gustin Gang, and Frankie Wallace, the younger and more courageous, didn't like it.

Without any hesitation, Frankie took over the Gustin throne, pushing out his brother unceremoniously, and he reorganized the mob, weeding out some of the more troublesome members that Stevie had permitted to come in and whom he had pampered for five years.

Stevie only tried once to question the leadership of his younger brother. This was when Stevie complained about Frankie's sending one of the gang out on his own. A short time later, Stevie was out in Detroit, recuperating and trying to forget the Boston scenes.

From that time—in August of 1927—until the death of Frankie in the Testa Building, the North End, on December 22, 1931, not one of the 20 water-men who ship their rum from various drops along the coast, from the tip of Cape Cod to the mouth of Boothbay Harbor, escaped being hijacked by the Gustin Gang.

Magnus, Boardman, Rosen, Finn, Paradis, Schwartz—they and the others, all fell victims of this pack with the new leader at the helm—but Frankie would not stand for any murders in the hi-jacking.

All the big shots in liquor running took their turn and took their losses, and only on one occasion did the rum-runners ever offer resistance enough to cause the firing of a gun.

On that occasion, when the bootlegger's rodman fired shots at the head of the hijackers, Frankie alone, without a gun in his hand, stepped from behind cover, took two fast steps, laced a hard fist against the jaw of the bootlegger's rodman—and laid him low.

On that catch the Gustins collected 600 cases of liquor without anybody concerned losing a single drop of blood. That was Frankie's idea exactly.

Hijacked Cargoes Brought Ready Cash

All the organization and defense devised by the syndicate rum runners failed to halt the Gustins in their foragings. With only one exception they were successful in these hijackings of water goods along the coast.

Once they had the liquor they would run in up to South Boston, deliver it at a South Boston garage, and then would turn it into ready cash through the willing services of "the relative with the peculiar name."

Not content with their success in knocking off rum landed off the water, the Gustins under Frankie, turned also to hi-jacking cleaned alcohol with the idea that the chance of being caught while hijacking cleaned alki was far smaller than the chance of being caught while taking water-goods.

Fourteen stills for the cleaning of alcohol, located within a radius of 17 miles from Boston and making daily deliveries, gave them shorter working hours and more profit. Then they learned by experience that the seling of hijacked alcohol to wholesalers brought them a smaller return than if they sold direct to the retailer or speakeasy proprietor—or than if they opened their own places and made all the profits.

Saloon Wreckings Swing Group in Line

Now a lot of speakeasy proprietors didn't care about buying the Gustins' alcohol, because the Gustins' alcohol sometimes was not so good, and you could do all kinds of things to alcohol to make it go as far as possible and give you more goods to sell, and more money.

Some of the small speakeasy proprietors began to object against being ordered to buy the Gustin goods, but the Gustin Gang soon thought up a way to still the objections. They merely went around to the speakeasy and nearly wrecked it.

After a little of this kind of treatment the speakeasy proprietor usually figured it was cheaper to buy the Gustins' alcohol and not be so fussy over the quality. It was the customers who drank it anyway.

These liquor negotiations did not take up all the time of the Gustins under Frankie, however, and as early as 1927 he led his band into the downtown area and, for nearly five years, he stood on their heads not only some of the best police officers in the city, by the many store and jewelry robberies they committed, but private detectives of the National Jewelry Association of America.

Charges Never Stick on Wallace Trio

Records of the individual members of the mob are proof that for these nearly five years the depredators faced the courts periodically—and usually successful—for various automobile violations, for breaking and entering, larceny, robbery, sample case snatching, receiving stolen goods, the beating of policemen, and scoresof any and other classificattions of crime.

The National Jewelry Association, in its investigation, charged this gang with the larceny of more than $350,000 worth of jewelry by various methods, larceny from railroad stations, snatching sample jewelry cases, holding up salesmen when there was no other way to work it—and even invading the hotel suites of salesmen.

On occasions members of the mob would take the most daring method of stealing jewelry and would toss a brick through a shop window. This is a risky procedure, however, and must not be resorted to until every other opportunity has vanished down wind.

During all this reign of lawlessness, the three Wallace brothers, Stevie, Frankie and Jimmy, were taken before the courts for both jewelry and rum jobs, but not on even a single occasion did the crimes stick. They all went free invariably.

(In tomorrow's BOSTON SUNDAY ADVERTISER will be continued this tale of the Gustins, and the Masked Reporter will reveal the inside story of The Flame Murder.)

Youngest of Gustin Trio Has Long Police Record

By the MASKED REPORTER

Copyright, 1933, by the Boston Evening American.

Here is the record of the 23-year-old James "Jimmy" Wallace, the youngest of the three Gustin brothers who have been recognized by the police at various times as the leaders of the Gustin Gang.

Like his brothers, Stevie and Frankie, Jimmy's record shows that he also ran afoul of the law at an early age and at the time of his first arrest he is recorded as having been 16 years old.

At present he is being sought for questioning in the death of Thomas "Red" Curran and has been successful in evading arrest since the body of Curran was found a week ago in a Quincy quarry pit.

His police record shows the same sort of crime as charged to Stevie and Frank, with the one exception, murder.

October, 1927, South Boston. Charge, breaking, entering and larceny. Probation and placed on file.

Same month. Brockton. Larceny of automobile. Probation extended.

June, 1928. Central Court, Boston. Assault and battery, jurisdiction declined.

Same month. Central Court, Boston. Larceny of automobile. Probation.

Grand jury returned no bill on above assault and battery.

November. Boston, Central Court. Larceny. Not guilty.

1929. March, Boston. Assault and battery, filed. Superior Court. (This assault case was complaint brought as result of Wallace stepping out of police lineup and slugging a witness who had identified him in a $35,000 jewelry snatch case.)

SERGT M'GRATH IS OUSTED BY MAYOR BURKE

Police Sergt. John C. McGrath of Medford, who married secretly, was found guilty today of conduct unbecoming an officer by Mayor John H. Burke, who confirmed his own removal of McGrath from the department.

McGrath's lawyer, Edward J. Bushell of Malden, announced he would appeal the mayor's decision to Malden district court.

With a statement by the mayor, explaining his action, the case came right back to where it started—to the ousting of McGrath on discovery of his elopment—after a circumlocution via charges of associating with a bootlegger and other violations.

OUSTED AFTER ELOPING

McGrath, who had been divorced, eloped with Claire Murphy, 20, West Medford heiress, to Portsmouth, N. H., last January. This was discovered by her father May 19, and McGrath was "fired" the next day.

Mayor Burke started his statement by saying:

"Decision to remove McGrath was not based upon his recent marriage, but upon his conduct as a member of the police department."

Then, defending the right of couples to marry if they mutually agreed, he said:

"It is my opinion that marriage is an honorable contract when entered into by honorable persons, and no one has any legal right to interfere with it when both parties are agreeable.

"There may be a moral right, but that moral right is not mine, nor have I considered it to be the city's right."

But the mayor closed by announcing McGrath was removed for failing to notify his superiors that he was leaving the city on Jan. 17 when he went to New Hampshire to be married.

LAW VIOLATION CHARGED

And he said he believed McGrath neglected to make this report deliberately "because he failed to comply with Chapter 207, Section 36, of the General Laws."

This section says:

"If a marriage is solemnized in another state between parties living in this Commonwealth, who return to dwell here, they shall within seven days after their return file with the clerk or registrar of the town where either of them lived, a certificate or declaration of their marriage."

There was never any record at Medford city hall of the New Hampshire marriage of McGrath and Miss Murphy, Burke said.

Mayor Burke reviewed McGrath's career as a policeman, stating he had been several times under fire and had been warned he must not again violate the rules of the department.

$250,000 GEM ROBBER FLEES

Raiford, Fla., June 3 (AP)—Harry Sitamore, society jewel thief who stole $250,000 worth of gems from residents of the Miami winter colony, escaped from the state prison farm with two other convicts yesterday.

His companions, two trusties, were working on the farm roads with a motor-powered dragger. As they passed Sitamore, also at work on the roads, he climbed on the vehicle and all drove off.

Prison authorities said they believed Sitamore was met later by a man in an automobile.

Sitamore was serving 40 years for the jewel thefts. He was sentenced April 1. He nonchalantly handed over a startling collection of valuables and told his captors they were worth $500,000 but insurance appraisers valued them at $250,000.

Grace Moore, the singer, was one of his victims.

Court Scolds Tech Boy Without Tie

John P. Hayes, 19, of Beacon st., Boston, a freshman at M. I. T., was censured in East Cambridge district court today by Judge Louis L. Green for appearing in court as a defendant without a necktie. Hayes wore a red sweater and his shirt was open at the neck. An auto charge was filed.

"I can conceive of a laborer going about that way, but there's no excuse for your coming here dressed like that," said Judge Green. "If you're here again, be properly dressed."

Cambridge Strike Pair Held for Trial

Two strikers, arrested near the A. R. Hyde & Sons Co. shoe factory on Columbia st., Cambridge, yesterday, pleaded not guilty today in East Cambridge district court and were ordered to appear Tuesday for trial with others arrested previously.

Miss Carolyn Champlin, Trenton st., East Boston, was charged with causing a disturbance and loitering. John Yezukevich, Jefferson st., Cambridge, was charged with causing a disturbance and trying to rescue Miss Champlin from arrest.

Greenwich School Burns

Greenwich, Ct., June 3 (AP)—The Brunswick School for Boys, a private school, was burned today with a loss, school officials said, that would reach $25,000. Firemen said the blaze started in the kitchen.

LOW PAY FLAYED AS MENACE TO WORKERS

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Miss Margaret Wiesman, secretary of the Consumers' League of Massachusetts, the findings of which league substantiate and support the facts brought out by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser's investigation of low wages and unsatisfactory working conditions in Massachusetts factories, addressed the Boston Council of Social Agencies yesterday.

UP TO CONSUMERS

She said:

"What can the consumer do in the campaign to rid Massachusetts of her sweatshops?

"If she buys at reputable retail stores and if she asks when she finds merchandise suspiciously low whether or not it is a sweatshop product, she is doing a great deal to help.

"Since it seems impossible in these days of many small shops to bring back the label and until we get a mandatory minimum wage which will peg wages, I think there must be some sort of an agreement between the retailers and the consumers that they will not buy from sub-standard shops."

Throughout the State, legislators are giving an active hand. Representatives from every district of the Commonwealth have signified their intention of carrying out fully their duty as the mouthpiece of the people.

LAUDS AMERICAN FIGHT

Heartily endorsing the campaign of the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser for higher wages and against poor working conditions in more than 750 factories throughout this State, Rep. William P. Grant, of Fall River said yesterday:

"Being from a city that has a number of sweatshops, and being a member of the legislative committee on labor and industries, I have interested myself in conditions which exist today in these sweatshops.

"Let me assure you that the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser's fight on sweatshops has my endorsement.

"Any bill or measure that will be beneficial to the young working women will have my wholehearted support."

GUSTINS FACE MOB REVENGE

hiding for six hours today, expecting a holdup of the Nantasket man near Worrick Inn. Nothing happened, and police believe the gangsters had news of the police ambush.

The police theory was that the holdup was planned to get funds to finance further hiding out of leaders of the gang.

Since "King" Solomon was slain, none of the leading figures in the underworld have felt as safe as they used to feel. In the past they thought they were safe as long as they followed the rules of gangdom. Now, with this reckless "mob" up to all sorts of tricks, they are walking on thin ice every day, the police say.

HAVE VALUABLE CLUES

A fingerprint on an auto headlight, and the maker's number on a pearl-handled automatic pistol, were counted upon today by police to send the slayers of Curran to the electric chair.

Police today photographed fingerprints found on the Curran murder auto which late yesterday was hauled from the deep quarry pool in Quincy where Curran's body was found.

Fingerprints of Fred Wallace, the diver, were eliminated and the others taken to the State House for classification and study.

Meanwhile officers are checking with the firearms factory on the numbers found on the .38 calibre pearl-handled automoatic pistol found at the bottom of the 128-foot pool, under the auto.

BACKED INTO QUARRY

One of Curran's teeth was found in the car today. The machine was found to be in reverse, and police say now they are convinced it was backed into the pool, with Curran unconscious in it. But they believe he was riddled with bullets before he was put put in the car. The gun was apparently thrown in before the car went over.

Timothy Coffey and Richard O'Connor, taken into custody yesterday and grilled in connection with the Curran case, were released on bail today, charged with being idle and disorderly. Three other South Boston youths, captured in a three-mile chase this morning, were released without charges. None of the five gave any information about the Curran murder.

FITZGERALD RELEASED

Andrew Fitzgerald, formerly of Dorchester ave., South Boston, went to headquarters voluntarily upon hearing police wished to question him, but he had no information to give about the Curran crime.

James Egan of West Newton st. told police he had been looking for Coffey for about six years, because he had put up $500 bail for Coffey on a liquor charge and lent him $50 to pay any possible fine. Coffey, he said, vanished. But Coffey denied it and Lieut. Stephen J. Gillis, named by Egan as the arresting officer, had no memory of it. Coffey boasted he was never arrested on a liquor charge.

Fashions on Wheels

Bermuda may have started it. Or memories of a bicycle built for two. But back we go to the simple pleasures of proceeding under our own steam on wheels. In Greenwich the have roller skating dances and the couples dart and swoop 'round and 'round the floor in ever-widening circles or land dramatically and unexpectedly on the floor. Between intrepid bicyclists and enthusiastic roller skaters the pedestrian is rapidly becoming extinct.

The runabout sudden returns to old ways is that they bring in their wake developments in clothes. These are a cross between the old and the new. They're bound to be useful and they're frequently picturesque in a gay nineties sort of way, as you can observe in today's sketch.

On the left you'll be entertained to see the post-war shortness of the skirt. It's white pique. Masses of fine plaits in the skirt make it look very young and nonchalant. The neck buttons up tight and businesslike; the little collar turns down over the bright blue cardigan. The whole effect is reminiscent of school days and is just right for those debutantes who roller skate with glorious abandon.

On the right is another type of wheeling. For a bicycle there's nothing quite like a divided skirt. This one, washable flannel in a natural color with a line check, is made nice and roomy and yet falls in good lines when you dismount from your fiery bike. It is topped by one of the most entertaining blouses of the year. This comes in all the honest peasant shades—a bright blue, a rich maroon, butter yellow or what you will. The weave is rough and it is linen, so it washes perfectly. Whatever the color, it has double rows of white buttons up its front.

The shoes are carefully chosen for their uses. They are sturdy, but with soles flexible enough to make them comfortable.

JUDGE REBUKES KREUGER BOARD

New York, June 3 (AP)—In one of the shortest judicial opinions on record—three words—Supreme Court Justice William Harmon Black refused today to dismiss a $100,000,000 accounting suit charging misfeasance and nonfeasance against eight directors of the International Match Company.

"Directors should direct," was Justice Black's terse ruling.

The accounting action was brought by the Irving Trust Company as trustee in bankruptcy of the match company, a Kreuger concern. The directors named as defendants are Frederick W. Allen, Donald Durant, Henry O. Havemeyer, Francis L. Higginson, Adrian H. Larkin, John McHugh, Samuel F. Pryor and Percy A. Rockefeller.

It was alleged in the accounting suit that the directors "abdicated and surrendered" their powers and duties to an executive committee dominated by the late Ivar Kreuger and that, as a result, $100,000,000 of the concern's assets were dissipated.

DORCHESTER DAY NEARLY RUINED

Carnival Routed From Playground, and the Program Proceeds

A carnival company from Rhode Island, equipped with games of chance, almost ruined the opening events of Dorchester Day, an annual frolic by residents of the district.

It appears that the carnival company, uninvited and without city authority, pitched its tents on hte Thomas J. Roberts Playground just as hundreds of children gathered there for various games on the day's program.

Police from the Mattapan station promptly descended upon the carnival, and ordered the company to give a quick imitation of Arabs by folding their tents and getting out of the district.

Some words passed between police and carnival employes, and children, a bit curious, gathered around the debaters. In chasing out the carnival, the police scattered the children, who immediately complained that the police wouldn't let them play.

City Councillor Thomas Burke, from Ward 17, thought the police were interfering because the Thomas J. Roberts Legion post did not have a permit to use the playground. He led a delegation of citizens to Mayor Curley's office and His Honor soon had everything straightened out.

The program this afternoon was featured by a 10-mile road race. Band concerts, speeches by Mayor Curley and ex-Mayor Nichols, and fireworks will wind up the celebration tonight.

RILEY CLERK OF LIQUOR BOARD

James P. Riley of West Roxbury today was appointed clerk of the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission.

Miss Elizabeth T. Harraghy of Somerville and Miss Mary A. O'Neill of Forest Hills were appointed chief clerk and finance clerk, respectively. Miss Harraghy was secretary to Commissioner William A. L. Bazeley before his transfer from conservation commissioner to the liquor board. Miss O'Neill was formerly attached to the division of parks in the conservation department.

The commission will appoint a secretary next Wednesday.

It is the intention of the commission to appoint 25 inspectors whose chief duty will be to check up on illegal sales of beer.

MRS. W. O. CLARK HELEN MACOMBER PATRICIA BIRD

HORSESHOW DEVOTEES journeyed again to the Waveney Farms of Reginald Bird in Framingham today for the second day of the annual Millwood Hunt Horse Show. Snapped as they watched one of the events, the above photo shows Mrs. William O. Clark, the former Betty Bird, daughter of the host, and her sister, Miss Patricia Bird, and Miss Helen Macomber, a debutante of last year.

MRS. GARDINER FISKE, who rode in several of the Millwood classes, is shown with Coquette, which captured the blue ribbon in the lightweight hunter class.

MRS. GARDINER FISKE

Mrs. Fiske's Coquette also shared the blue with Al Adrift in the class for pair jumpers and was one of the three horses of the Millwood team which won the Hunt trophy. The beautiful mare was faultlessly ridden by her owner who prefers the dignified side saddle seat.

CONGRATULATIONS . . . ! MR. EDGAR CARTER

CRUST of No. 22 Reservoir ave., Chestnut Hill, announces the engagement of his beautiful daughter, Miss Rosamond Rust, to Mr. Reginald Stuart Ward, of Cambridge, son of Mrs. Clarence S. Ward and the late Mr. Ward . . .

Miss Rust, one of the most popular members of society to be presented in the season of 1928-29, is a member of the Vincent Club and Junior League and attended Miss Masters' school at Dobbs Ferry previous to her debut . . .

ROSAMOND RUST

Mr. Ward belongs to the Society of the Cincinnati . . . you will remember that we gave you the history of this exclusive order in an earlier column; suffice to say that one of your immediate ancestors must have been attached to the staff of General George Washington in order to have that appendage placed after your name . . . and is a former member of the First Corp Cadets, which used to be called the White-Gloved Corps when WE were a girl. No wedding plans have been announced but as Miss Rust's sister, Katherine, is to be wedded in June, perhaps there will be a double ceremony, which would indeed be something new in social circles . . .

* * *

Speaking of engagements . . . have you heard that little Sally Ives (Sarah to you, and you and you) of Salem, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ives, will soon announce her engagement, we believe, to Llewelyn Howland, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Llewelyn Howland of Brookline. Miss Ives will serve Miss Barbara Richardson as bridesmaid when she is married to Francis Bradley down on the Cape in June . . .

Millwood Hunt Attracts Crowds

MILLWOOD'S TWO-DAY HORSE AND HOUND show got off to a good start yesterday . . . although all beagles look alike to us they must have looked differently to Newell Bent, because he took most of the morning to judge the best ones and award the prizes . . . the hound show opened at 10 and every hound and beagle knew where it stood in the hound and beagle world before intermission for lunch . . .

The program of 17 horse events started at 11:30 and continued throughout the day . . . as it is doing today again. Morning events were the heavyweight hunters, saddle horses owned in Worcester County, lightweight hunters, thoroughbred stallions, thoroughbred hunters and middleweight hunters.

Miss Dorothy West, one of the debutantes of this season, took her mother's accustomed place in the show ring and very attractive was she seated side-saddle on her hunter . . . when she wasn't strolling about with the attractive George Movius . . .

Gracious Mrs. Gardiner Fiske rode in several classes and we wish she would take all the blues so much do we admire her . . . she is always so genial and charming, never stiff-necked or awkward and a heck of a good sport . . . we snapped her with our camera as she was strolling around the paddock with genial Mrs. William B. Long and Mrs. Winthrop Pyemont, whose pretty little girl, Mary, was attending her first horse show . . .

Groups of horse lovers were seated in their cars around the ringside . . . we chatted a moment with Mrs. Reginald Bird, whose green crash and orange costume was quite summery . . . she was with Mrs. Fairfield Goodale and her daughter, Mary Emery, whose dark good looks were set off by a yellow ensemble . . .

Garden Fete at Nelson Estate Planned

The garden fete at the residence of Mrs. James J. Nelson on June 8 promises to be quite a big affair on the social calendar. Mrs. William Goodwin and Miss Minnie Brackett will have charge of the sale of Christopher Shop articles which is to be the beneficiary of the fete. Mrs. Ernst Parsons will be in charge of the bridge tournament.

The group of young ladies assisting Mrs. Grant with the children's entertainments includes the Misses Lydia Fuller, Lanadale Watson, Catherine and Jane Brown, Marjorie Estabrook, Priscilla Phelan, Jean Read, Jane Butler Smith, Barbara Eaton, Ruth Williams, Eileen Williams, Evelyn Weatherby, Frances Poinier, Grace Nelson, Frances Keyes and Florence Potter. Miss Elizabeth Mixter, assisted by Miss Alice Wood, will be in charge of the grabs.

in Knit Suit

SEATED IN the grass like a little girl was Mrs. George S. West in a pink boucle knit suit with darker rose sailor . . . she is another good sport who always turns out for any sporting event, especially for horses and dogs, a real lover of animals.

Mrs. William O Clark (Betty Bird) on whose father's estate this event took place at Waveney Farms in Framingham, watched each class with interest seated with Helen Macombrr, a deb of last year, with fluffy light hair and big blue eyes, and her sister, Miss Patricia Bird, whom we have never seen except in a riding habit . . .

Mrs. Richardson Harwood, who is on the committee for the garden fete at Mrs. James Nelson's on Thursday, for the Christopher Shop, looked very chic as she strolled about in an all-white costume with her friend Mrs. Edward Neilley, who was also in the fashionable all-white . . .

The Millwood Hunt Trophy, to be won three times for permanent possession, had a field of 12 teams . . .

Good old George H. D. H. Lamson gave the Master's trophy, which is a new one.

You couldn't find a more beautiful spot in which to spend the day than Waveney Farms and the day was made perfect for the occasion . . . the ride out to Framingham over the new Worcester pike is a joy and to anyone who has not seen the foliage this season a trip out to the Millwood Horse Show today would make a perfect Saturday jaunt . . . take along some sandwiches and picnic on the way, country air will sweep out your lungs . . .

BOOKS---And a Number of Things

By Charles Hanson Towne

I think it is about this way: You either like Frank Sullivan's particular brand of humor immensely, or you don't like it at all. I happen to belong to the former group —of whom there are, I am glad to say, thousands; and we who accept him as a little god of humor pity those who fail to understand his bubbling mirth.

His originality may be one reason why a few lost souls stand outside looking in, wondering what all the laughter is about. His fun may be too localized, too. It would be hard, I suppose, for a woman in a kimono out in the hinterlands to appreciate a slice of such thoroughly New York humor as this, and it would be expecting too much of her. It occurs in the sketch, "Yvonne," from Sullivan's latest book, "In One Ear . . ." published by the Viking Press. If you laugh at it, you are a Sullivan fan forever; if you don't you are, as far as I am concerned, anathema:

"Maybe it would help if we organized Beekman Place to help in the search for Yvonne. I could do that, and it would not be difficult, because, thank God, the old husking-bee spirit has not disappeared from our little community. No Beekmanite in distress is suffered to go for long unaided. Outsiders may call in parochialism, but we have another name for it. We call it Loyalty. We, of Beekman Place, are a simple, rugged people without any frills. Life is no bed of roses for us. The soil is rocky, the climate none too salubrious, and the East River, which is our outlet to the sea (and the secret of our greatness) is full of tomato cans. But we eke out an existence on our little rock over here. It was good enough for our grandfathers, and at least we can look any man in the face, which is more than [illegible] tribes of western Manhattan can do. And we have given three Presidents to the country: Millard Fillmore, Guthrie McClintic and Katharine Cornell. But enough of braggadocio."

* * *

This page is followed, through the courtesy of Patricia Collinge, with her own famous reply to the speech, which is just as amusing as Fran. Sullivan's own. But that I cannot quote. It must be read in its entirety. It is a minor classic.

I cannot think of the lady in the kimono appreciating the salty flavor of "Life Is a Bowl of Eugene O'Neills," if she has never seen "Mourning Becomes Electra" or "Desire Under the Elms." Here is satire at its best with such lines as these:

"General—No no! Fine fellow. Go right ahead. Have a good time. You're only young once.

"Alice (gloomily)—It's not so. Wa Badduns are always Jung.

"Alin—Life gets Adler and Adler.

"Earle—Oh, mother dear, I'm afraid. I'm so afraid; let us go to my island in the Pacific."

* * *

But surely even those from the sunny South could understand the rich fun of a sketch like "Dixie Nocturne," which begins thus:

"At a fashionable Mayfair gathering I came across a wisp of a slip of a girl from below the Mason-Dixon Line. Gay, vivacious, charming, she was like a breath of the Old South, the South I had known, the South of women who were gallant and men who were pure. I could scarcely have been a scion of the Maffies of Maffie Corthouse, Maffie County, Virginia (a hard-drinking, hard-riding, hard-loving clan, sah) had I remained unmoved by the charm of this fragile echo of my beloved Dixie."

* * *

Mr. Sullivan, I believe, has never been to Europe; yet he takes you there on a liner as you have been taken a dozen times; and he shows you Paris as perhaps you have never seen it.

In these days when our barber shops are patronized by ladies as well as gentlemen—and I do not mean bearded ladies—there must be no one of either sex who could fail to understand the delicious scene enacted in "No Singe for Mr. Throck."

The best of these sketches is that they endure the test of being read aloud. I do not see why some lecture bureau does not attach itself to Mr. Sullivan and arrange a tour for him throughout the length and breadth of this land, so that he could bring happiness to the women's clubs, so sorely in need of laughter.

Instead of turning on the radio tonight, I advise you to procure Mr. Sullivan's volume and read any passages in it to a group of your friends. For Mr. Sullivan is God's gift to a panic-stricken world.

Last year, when a previous book of Mr. Sullivan's sketches was not, unfortunately, in these troubled times enjoying the huge sale it should have enjoyed, the story goes that the author went solemnly to his publisher and suggested:

"Say, why don't we change the title of 'Proceed and Old Lace' to 'The Good Earth' ?"

AN EVER-PRESENT CLOTHES PROBLEM IS THAT OF SEVERITY VERSUS FUSSINESS

Happy Medium Is 'School's' Choice

By MARGARET MATSON

THE "SCHOOL OF CLOTHES" voices the opinion of many when it avers that clothes to be well-chosen should strike a happy medium between severity and fussiness. It is the age-old problem.

There is one extreme that banishes all jewelry, all adornments, that says, as a girl just recently said to us, "I won't wear that; it has a bow!" when, as a matter of fact, the bow was very simple, just enough to rub the harsh edges off a squared neckline. And there is the other extreme that will persist in doing itself up in all the rosebuds and lace in its possession.

We feel that the well-dressed set includes neither of these two types, that either extreme is in bad taste. The one because it is usually too theatrical, too manish or too drab; the other because it is too over-adorned, confusing and vain to be pleasant.

Extreme Clothes

Today's well-dressed woman does wear extreme clothes, some very severe and some bewilderingly frilly. And yet you will notice that she always does it discreetly.

When her clothes are severe, you generally find that her hair is waved softly or that there is some accessory or some touch of color that is unusually becoming and sufficiently feminine to counteract the effect of the severity of the clothes. When she dons the ultra-feminine sort of thing, the ruffles and ribbons and garlands of flowers that are present in the summer mode, you again find her exerting the greatest care to keep them as simple as possible. She never looks over-dressed.

Face Rules

Almost all costumes need some sort of adornment, some bit of jewelry of flowers or lingerie to make them flattering. The only ones that might be best without are those frocks that are designed with what we might call a "simple intricacy" of line that is itself softening without being at all frilly. Such dresses are in the height of favor.

And of course, one's face makes the greatest difference. If her features are severe, her hair very simple, then the clothes must be chosen with the intention of counteracting that severity. If, on the other hand, her face is lovely, her hair exquisitely feminine, then the most severe costume in the world couldn't be harsh.

The Marry-Go-Round; Echo of Jazz

By HELEN ROWLAND

THERE WERE more marriages during the worst year of the depression than during any one year of "prosperity." Misery loves company. Anybody will play around with you when you're on the up-and-up, but if you want somebody to share your troubles, you've got to have somebody TIED to you.

Helen Rowland

* * *

This is no time of year to choose a husband. When a girl's vanity needs a spring tonic, her common sense goes into a coma—and almost anything in the right dinner coat looks like heaven's answer to prayer.

* * *

No matter how little a girl may want to marry a man, the thought of the wedding thrills her—and no matter how anxious a man may be to marry a girl, the thought of the wedding paralyzes him.

* * *

Love is that perfect congeniality and mutual enthusiasm which makes it impossible for two people ever to run out of conversation—and yet possible for them to be silent for hours in each other's company, without ever feeling bored.

* * *

Every woman who can wear blue should feature it this season. Blue lends any woman an aura of innocence and naïveté which stills all a man's alarms and brings to life all his boyish illusions. He simply cannot think of a girl in blue as "dangerous."

* * *

If trousers and pipes ever are seriously adopted among women, no girl will need a conscience to keep her out of temptation.

* * *

The hardest task of a marrying girl's life is to get a man to stand STILL long enough for her to stage a wedding.

The wild "younger generation" of the Jazz Age, who used to sneak in softly at dawn to keep from shocking their parents, are now sneaking in softly to avoid shocking their children.

'ILLUSTRATED EXCLAMATIONS'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"DARLING!" alone, by its expressive self, could take up a whole picture. Whispered in a beloved baby's ear as soft as a new-born sycamore-leaf. Whispered to a greying head, much loved through up and down years. Whispered to a funny, naughty, good little boy, the darling of a parent's foolish heart. Whispered into the ear of a plain young man transformed by loving eyes to a splendid Prince Charming. Whispered into the primrose-pink ear of a girl—doted upon, compared to stars and flowers, jewels and other precious things, is the first thought of, so must be illustrated.

"OOH!" is best pictured, entirely, by the look on a young lady's face when first she sees her lovely visage under one of the new tall hats.

"OH!" is the anguished words, most sincere, that burst from the lips of Jill when first, in the radiant brightest light of the bathroom, she sights the first grey hair.

"AH!" is most perfectly delirted by the picture of a young man struck all of a heap, deaf, paralyzed, all but blind, by the vision of a new-day pretty girl in 1933 get-up, passing him by.

"MMM-M-M-mmm!" there is some argument about. Some say it should be best illustrated by a face lost in the ecstasy of a tall beaker of amber beer. But Cupid won out with me. So the picture is of a young person with closed eyelids—dewy and rosy, indrawn breath, mind in a gentle daze, inhaling the perfume of an expensive fragrance out of a delicate, also expensive bottle.

Serum Is Found for Typhus Fever

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

IN MY mail today I received two unusual letters. One letter requested information about typhus fever. The other was a report of recent work on this disease conducted by the United States public health service and the Mexican government. Announcement was made of the discovery of a serum which protects against a certain form of typhus fever.

Dr. Copeland

This is of special interest to the inhabitants of Mexico and the citizens of the southern states. In this territory typhus fever is still prevalent.

This is one of the most deadly diseases known to mankind. It is always associated with filth and unhygienic surroundings. It was especially prevalent when little was known about sanitation and wretched living conditions were common.

Typhus fever is often confused with typhoid fever. But the diseases are quite different and run different courses. Typhus fever is carried by a germ found in rats. It is carried from one rat to another by rat lice and fleas. It is transmitted to humans by fleas.

Typhoid fever is caused by a germ called the "bacillus typhyosus." This is found in contaminated food, milk and water supplies. Like typhus fever, the disease at one time was prevalent throughout the world. Fortunately, we have a vaccine called the typhoid vaccine which prevents the disease. Due to proper supervision of food, water and milk and the use of typhoid vaccine, the disease is now rarely encountered.

For many years experimental research has endeavored to discover a vaccine for typhus fever similar to the vaccine successfully used against typhoid fever. It is hoped that the announcement of the new typhus fever vaccine will aid in the eradication of this disease.

PREMIERE

By Robert Terry Shannon

"WHY DO YOU think I stayed here to talk to you?"

"I don't know," said Leni frankly.

"It's not on account of your contract—I don't give a rap about that—"

"What then?"

Herman Gerstenfield took a step closer. There was nothing about him of charm or good looks. An inconspicuous man with a tired face and dry, neglected hair on an ordinary head. A man to pass unnoticed in a crowd except for the gathered concentration in those dark and glistening eyes.

"I'm interested in just one thing in this whole business," he said levelly. "I'm interested in you. You're not going to get away. You belong. You're one of us. You and I and all of us in this mad business are like a little tribe of people. We stick together. The other people—the outsiders—they're enemies. You can't get away from the pictures even if you wanted to. It's in your blood."

Leni stood up straight and faced him.

"Whatever you say has nothing to do with it," she uttered steadily.

HIT HARD

"Don't fool yourself," Gerstenfield returned, holding her with his eyes. "I know more about you than you know about yourself. Whether you realize it or not, you and I are tangled up together. I'm not talking about studio business. I'm talking about you—and me!"

Gerstenfield's words hit hard. They stung her with surprise. She had never dreamed that he was interested in her as a woman. He was standing directly in front of her and she had the sensation that she was close to a bare wire heavily charged with electricity.

"You might as well get ready to wake up!" he declared, a pressure in his voice.

The faint smile still clung to her lips, but there was no amusement behind it.

"Please—will you leave me alone?"

She tried to speak with poise but there was a gulp in her throat. Every nerve cell was alert with vitality but somehow defenseless against the nameless attack Gerstenfield made.

"You're going to wake from this illusion that you're in love with that man Cavanaugh," he said in a whiplash voice. "The trouble with you is you've jumped the track and don't know it. Sit down and listen to me."

Leni found herself obeying him. Gerstenfield had unleashed something within himself that had changed a cold, mathematical machine into a relentless and pulsating male animal whose newly-revealed personality swept around Leni and threatened every moment to seize command of everything.

"If I saw you stumbling into a fatal accident, I'd snatch you back," Gerstenfield said.

His attitude, the flash of his eyes, the snap of his voice, bordered upon the contemptuous. His face had grown paler, his body appeared to have no temperature at all but Leni had the distinct impression that a white heat seethed inside him.

"You are a woman and therefore are not always in sound mind. Your imagination runs away with you. For a woman like you, life is going to be miserable—unless you stay where you belong."

Leni made a forced effort to combat him. Deliberately she lifted her eyebrows, an effort at skepticism.

"Are you, by and chance, trying to save me from myself?" she inquired with a hauteur that shook a little.

"There's no one else to save you from, except yourself," shot back Gerstenfield. "You have beauty, talent—maybe genius, but no brain. Of yourself you can do nothing. It requires the combined resources of the fourth largest industry to make a place in which you can function. Before you got into pictures, what kind of a life did you lead?"

COLOR LEFT FACE

Leni could tell from the tingling in her temples that some of the color was leaving her face. This man, she thought, has found out somehow about my past. It gave her a feeling of cold indecency and she wrapped herself in a quick lie by flaring with dignity.

"I lived quite comfortably at home," she said.

Gerstenfield scorched her with his eyes and she turned her gaze away.

"Come—be honest! That's not true, is it?"

With it lifting her lids she answered him.

"No."

"I knew it was a lie. How? I cannot tell you—I just know. I sense those things. There was something—not pretty. You were out on your own—you bucked the game without our vast machinery behind you. It was an place on earth for you—one isplace on earth for you—one is- and of safety. The future!"

Leni would have got up and left the room. The instinct to escape, to flight, awakened and she rose to her feet.

"What" she asked in a thin voice, "does all this get to?"

Gerstenfield looked at her and put a hand on her shoulder. It was the first time he had ever touched her. They had never even shaken hands. He pushed her downward backward into a chair, gently yet definitely.

The Daily True Story

Paying Guest

FROM THE DAY that Rodney Hall had come to live at Seaview, Myrna had wondered about him. To begin with, he was the first guest and he never talked about himself, never said what his business was and never told any of those little anecdotes by which men usually supply information on their past.

Now she knew why.

She had gone into his room to make certain that the chambermaid had done her work properly. Operating a home for "paying guests" was new to Myrna. When her father had died, leaving her and her mother nothing but the large house by the seashore, they had decided that the only way they could keep it was to turn it into a boarding house. They had advertised for guests and Rodney Hall had been the first to come.

He seemed so—well, secretive about himself," Myrna's mother had said after he had been there a few days. And now Myrna, standing before the dresser in his room, knew that her mother was right.

She put down the packet of newspaper clippings she had found on the dresser and had idly picked up to examine. They told the story. All of them dealt with the hunt for Jack Funston, escaped murderer.

Myrna felt a little faint as the full realization was forced on her. She hadn't meant to pry into his affairs.

She didn't hesitate. She opened the top drawer of the dresser and moved some clothing. An automatic pistol lay in the drawer.

The remaining hours of the day were like an evil dream. Unable to decide what to do she ended by doing nothing.

It seemed hours later when she came struggling up from sleep. What was happening. There was the roar of a shot outside the house followed by another. Then came the sound of running feet, voices calling and then a crash. Someone shouted "I've got him."

"They caught a murderer," Mrs. Ferris finally managed to say. "Mr. Hall was outside and—"

But before she could finish Rodney Hall himself strode behind her. Myrna drew the bedclothes closely about herself.

"I'm sorry to disturb you like this, Miss Ferris," said Rodney. "Perhaps I should have warned you but I was afraid to take a chance. You may have read about the escape of this man Funston?"

Myrna could only nod in reply.

"I knew he would come here," Rodney went on. "That's why I didn't want you to go out tonight. You see, I'm the detective who arrested and convicted him. He swore then he would get even. When he escaped I came here and gave him a chance. He thought I was alone but I had men about the house every night. He thought he was trapping me but we were really trapping him."

All Myrna could say was, "Will you have to go now?"

"He answered, "Yes, but I can come back."

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly tell me what you should order when you go to get something to eat after a dance or after a show? DOT.

Indeed, I shall help you, but I wish coffee to be brewed enough to send me an addressed envelope and let me send you a pamphlet I have prepared on "After Theater Eats." It is several pages long and in it I have listed everything I could think of appropriate to eat after a dance or theater from a humble roll and coffee to the aristocratic dishes "under glass."

Brouillard vs. Jeby New York Gets Bout Set for July 26 | Inflation in Golf Membership Booms DeGlane in Training

By JACK CONWAY

Lou Brouillard is likely to be recognized as world's middleweight champion by the end of the summer. I have just learned from an authoritative source that Lou has been matched to meet Ben Jeby, New York State champion, in a 15-round bout at the Yankee Stadium on July 26. Al Weill will be the promoter. Weill staged the Brouillard-McLarnin tussle last summer which ended with a victory for the Worcester warrior.

MR. BOSTON

Brouillard is also under contract to battle Mickey Walker, former world's middleweight champion, at the Boston Garden on July 6. Walker vacated his middleweight crown to clash with Jack Sharkey. If Brouillard beats Walker, it will be a perfect buildup for the Brouillard-Jeby match.

If Brouillard becomes middleweight champion, he will follow in the footsteps of Mickey Walker. The latter lost his welterweight crown to Pete Latzo at Scranton, Pa., and after a layoff won the middleweight championship by licking Tiger Flowers at Chicago. Brouillard gained the welterweight title, when he disposed of Young Jack Thompson at the Boston Garden, but dropped it to Jackie Fields two months later in a contest in Chicago.

Brouillard displayed his old fighting flame in his recent bout with Sammy Slaughter. He outboxed and outpunched the Terre Haute middleweight. Lou has been a credit to the boxing game, and I am rooting for him to bring new ring glory to New England.

Greater Boston Golf Clubs Increase Membership

Perhaps it is due to inflation. Anyhow the membership lists at most of the Greater Boston golf clubs are booming along like the noble stock market. There have been numerous resignations of members, but in the majority of cases the number of new members has been greater than the list of those who have resigned. In some cases, lower membership dues helped the good cause along.

The days when a new member to a golf club is obliged to purchase a $500 or $1000 bond are over. Folks do not carry that amount of spare cash around with them any more.

Golfers have found they can still play their favorite game without going into debt. All clubs recognized that they had to reduce some of the heavy charges to retain members.

The caddies have been the hardest hit by the depression. Caddy fees have been reduced in many cases, while some clubs have rules against tipping. Many golfers, especially the ladies, now carry their own clubs. I hope it will not be necessary for them to do this much longer as I like to see every caddy make a week's wages. Most of the youngsters give in their money at home where it is needed to purchase the necessities of life for a flock of healthy youngsters. Many boys also use their caddy fees to help pay their way through school.

Caddies as a class are fine, wholesome boys. Life in the open air makes them healthy. The rules of sportsmanship which they learn at an early age help to make them good citizens.

DeGlane Opens Training Camp for Drive for Title

Henri DeGlane has opened a training camp in Boston, and is down to the serious business of getting ready for his finish mat bout with the Blue Masked Marvel which will be staged by Paul Bowser at the Boston Garden on next Friday night. The Frenchman's injured shoulder is all right again, and Henri says that when he returns to gay Paree he will be world's heavyweight wrestling champion.

I believe DeGlane is justified in saying Ed Don George was lucky to win the title in their bout. The Frenchman scored a fall before his collarbone was shattered, but after meeting with that mishap he didn't have a chance of gaining another fall.

The Blue Masked Marvel has been toppling all kinds of rugged opposition. Members of the wrestling fraternity have an idea De Glane will be beaten on next Friday night unless he is at the peak of his form. I admire DeGlane for tackling such a tough opponent. The Frenchman has supreme confidence in his own ability. I believe he would be happy if somebody told him in confidence that the Blue Masked Marvel was Jim Londos or Ed Don George.

Bowser announces he has matched Charley Strack and Roland Kirschmeyer, a couple of playful boys from Oklahoma, to meet in the semifinal match.

I am rooting for Wally Berger to paste out at least one homer in today's doubleheader with the Dodgers . . . I like my hitters big and powerful . . . Andy Callahan has signed to defend his New England welterweight championship against Frankie Britt of Fall River in an outdoor show at Fall River on June 12 . . . Bey Selaymen, praying Turk, will have to do more than pray if he is to win from Pat Fraley, Canadian heavyweight champion, in their finish mat bout at the Rollaway Rink, Revere, on next Tuesday night . . . Alex MacLean has matched Benny Ginsberg, Jewish champion of New York, to take a few shots at John Spellman of Providence in the semifinal which will have a 30-minute limit . . . I like Holy Cross to win from Harvard in their baseball game at Soldiers Field this afternoon . . . Down through the years the Purple has been represented by great baseball teams . . . Ed Britt, a sophomore, is batting .450 for Holy Cross . . . His specialty is clouting home runs . . . Holy Cross is coached by Jack Barry, who played shortstop for the Athletics, along with Baker, Collins and McInnis . . . Max Schmeling is a 2 to 1 favorite over Max Baer along Newspaper Row . . . ### Berger Hit, Hits

Wally Berger, Braves home run king, had a perfect day at the platter in the opening game against the Dodgers, though it looked for a few moments as if it might be several days before he could play again.

Going up in the third, after drawing a walk in the first, he was struck right under the heart by one of Ownie Carroll's fast balls. He wobbled for a spell but gamely held his feet and staggered to first. The blow didn't affect his batting eye. He made two singles in his next two trips to the pan.

AS ENGLISH WON ANNUAL DIAMOND DEBATE WITH LATIN

Ryan of Latin comes home safely to put the Purple temporarily out in front in its annual game with English High at University Heights, Chestnut Hill, today. English catcher had Ryan out at the plate but dropped the ball. In a free hitting contest, English took the verdict, 13-10. Bill Timmins, English third sacker, hit a homer with two on in the ninth.

MULDOON, RING CZAR, DEAD

Purchase, N. Y., June 3 (AP)—William Muldoon, New York state athletic commissioner, former heavyweight wrestling champion, Shakesperian actor, exemplar of all that was best in sport, died today at his home here in his 89th year.

His exciting and adventurous career came to an end just at dawn, 3:40 a. m. E.S.T., from a cancer which an operation 18 months ago failed to relieve.

With him were his adopted daughter, Margaret Farrell Muldoon, his former secretary, whom he adopted two years ago when he realized that his death was not far distant, and his physician, Dr. Henry T. Kelly, long a personal friend. He was conscious almost to the moment of his death.

It was his request that no church ceremonies be held over his body, that there be no flowers and no pallbearers, so a few of his friends will gather at his home in a day or so—the date has not been definitely set—and escort him to his final resting place in a mausoleum at Kensico, in the Westchester Hills.

CIVIL WAR VET

A poor farm boy, Muldoon enlisted in the Union Army at the age of 15, fought through the Civil War, served on the New York police force and as an exponent of health built a considerable fortune rebuilding the bodies of financiers, leaders of business and politics.

A marvelously strong man, he was heavyweight wrestling champion of the world back in the '80s, retiring undefeated to go on the stage with the parents of the present day Barrymores in Shakespeare's plays. He tended Ethel Barrymore as a baby while her parents acted their parts on the stage and waited in the wings for his cue.

He was one of the few men whom the great John L. Sullivan feared and the only trainer the heavyweight champion had who could make Sullivan go through with his training routine. Armed with a baseball bat he attempted to make Sullivan get up to take a morning hike.

DOWNED JOHN L.

"If you'll drop that club I'll knock your head off," Sullivan roared. Muldoon tossed the club aside, grappled with the Boston strong boy and in a moment had him pinned to the floor helpless. The bitterness engendered then kept the men apart for many years but when Sullivan died Muldoon was a sincere mourner.

English Beats Latin in Annual Tilt, 13 to 10

Helped by the timely home runs of Bill Timmons and Capt. Johnny Mannix, the English High baseball team staged a brilliant rally in the last inning to break an 8-8 tie and beat their ancient rival, Boston Latin, 13-10, at University Heights before a crowd of 1500.

The game had all the color and spirit that is characteristic of clashes between these two Boston schoolboy nines and it saw Latin school topple from its league throne in favor of English high.

WALL STARTS SCORE

With the score 8 all in the first of the ninth, Eddy Wall reached first on an error by the Purple second baseman. It was at this point that Bill Timmons earned his niche in the hall of fame at Montgomery st., pasting the first ball pitched to him out into deep right field. Ike Sheehan, playing the center pasture for the Fenway school, made a fine attempt to cut Timmons off at the plate and just missed him as Timmons put the blue and blue out in front.

DOWNEY GETS DOUBLE

White, the next batter for English, obtained a single and was advanced to third by Downey's double. Capt. Mannix drew a free ticket and then Ken Becker banged out a double to score a brace of runs. Eddy Wall again did his bit by the Montgomery st. institution by singling to score two more runners.

Latin made a feeble attempt to come back in the last half of the ninth frame. Ike Sheehan drew a base on balls and was sent to second on Frank Ryan's single. Ed Hoye singled and then the rumor of the game as left fielder Downes clipped base umpire Murphy on the leg with a fast travelling grounder, but this cost English a scored run. Frank Ryan managed to get across the plate on a high sacrifice fly by Gill to left field.

ENGLISH GETS JUMP

English High got the jump in the first inning when two singles by Flynn and Lyons put Downey, who had been passed, across the rubber. From this point until the end of the game the result was in constant doubt with each side scoring on the other.

With the score 3-1 against his side Capt. Mannix of English slashed out a home run with one man on to put the blue and blue ahead. Not to be fazed the Fitzgerald-coached nine came to bat in the fifth with the score 5-2 in favor of English. Benson reached first on an error by Downey and then Pitcher Davis, who was one of the hitting aces of the day, singled. Capt. Bouchie reached first on a fielder's choice and then little Specks Kelly cracked out a single that brought in two runs.

HODAPP LEADS AMERICAN LOOP

By Associated Press

Urban "Johnny" Hodapp, Red Sox second sacker, and Johnny Frederick of the Dodgers cut rather large figures in the major league batting picture during the past week and wound up as the leaders of the two big leagues after Friday's games.

Hodapp held his average up to the previous week's .374 level while his rivals slumped badly. Sam West of St. Louis, American League leader a week ago, got back into action after a long layoff and promptly dropped to fourth place on list of leaders as his average shot down from .381 to .363.

Al Simmons' mark dropped seven points to .366 but he advanced to second place.

Frederick profited by a sudden slump on the part of Pepper Martin of the St. Louis Cardinals, who had ousted him from the National lead for a while, and went back to the top by raising his average three points to .365.

Martin dropped to fifth place at .344 with a 25 point loss. Pie Traynor of Pittsburgh gained second although he lost 12 points and found Chuck Klein of the Phillies only a point behind at .347.

Devens Blinds 'Em

Newark, N. J., June 3 (AP)—Charlie Devens pitched one-hit baseball and struck out nine men as the Newark Bears defeated Baltimore, 3 to 0, in a game under the arc lights. Boyle, Oriole rightfielder, was the only one of his team to get a hit. The blow came in the ninth after one was down. Arlett then went out on a sacrifice and Solters grounded out to end the game.

PIPGRAS HURLS FOR RED SOX

Special to Boston American

Washington, D. C., June 3—Having discovered in the second game of the series that the Senators aren't weak against southpaws just because they have four left-handed batters, Manager Marty McManus has shifted from Lloyd "Lefty" Brown, a former Solon, to George Pipgras, ex-Yankee, for Red Sox mound duty this afternoon.

Joe Cronin, Capital pilot, will assign Walter Stewart, his ace southpaw, to give the natives the lead in the engagement.

If either Ivy Paul Andrews or Gordon "Dusty" Rhodes, who finished up Friday's tilt, had started, the Sox might now be boasting of two straight wins here. As it was, Bob Weiland opened on the visitors' hill and before he was relieved in the third, the Nats had landed on his southpaw shoots for five runs and coasted to an 8-to-3 victory.

Monte Weaver, coming back after hurling eight innings against the Yanks on Wednesday, kept Boston's nine hits well scattered. He was bothered only by Smead Jolley, who pounded out a triple and a double and scored two of the enemy's three runs.

Every one of the winners made at least one safety as the Sox hill trio was handing out 13.

Manager McManus benched himself after the Senators had piled up their big early lead and Bernie Friberg finished the game at the hot corner. The utility infielder came through with a pair of bingles.

New York, June 3 (AP)—The New York Yankees today announced the outright release of Pete Jablonowski, right handed pitcher, to their International League farm, Newark.

Curtain Drops on Famous Warrior

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

"For in my youth I never did apply
Hot and rebellious liquors in my blood;
Therefore my age is as a lusty winter,
Frosty but kindly."

Many times in his role of Charles the Wrestler with Mme. Modjeska in Shakespeare's "As You Like It," William Muldoon had to repeat the above lines. He not only repeated them but he lived them. That perhaps is why William Muldoon at more than fourscore years was hale and hearty and a remarkable figure of a man.

But now, nine days after his 88th birthday, the curtain has been rung down in life's drama on "The Noblest Roman of Them All."

The appelation, first placed upon him we think by the late Paul Armstrong, the playwright, who used to write sports under the nom de plume of "Right Cross," fitted Muldoon well. Muldoon was a striking figure and a striking character.

On the stage of life William Muldoon played many parts. Drummer boy in the Civil War, a member of the New York police department when it was known as "The Finest," world's Graeco-Roman wrestling champion, Shakesperian actor with Mme. Modjeska and a sweetheart of the noted Polish actress, supporter of the elder Barrymore, Rose Roughlan and other stars, star himself in Spartacus and the Gladiators, trainer of the great John L. Sullivan, proprietor of a famous health farm in which some of the country's most distinguished men were moulded back to health, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission and Czar of Boxing.

88 YEARS OLD

Those were some of the roles played by the Grand Old Man who passed away yesterday, nine days after his 88th birthday.

William Muldoon's pet antipathy was against cigarettes. He did not like to remain in the same room with one smoking what he termed "the vile things." This the writer personally found out when he was given the first interview accorded by Muldoon when he was appointed to the State Athletic Commission.

Not knowing Muldoon's adversion to the weed we almost smoked him out until his opening of the windows and doors in his office and glaring looks at our cigarette told us plainer than words how Muldoon detested smoking.

Many erroneous stories have been printed of the famous athlete, actor and official. One of them was that John L. Sullivan was fearfully afraid of him and that Muldoon once cowed the great John L. with a baseball bat.

"That Sullivan story is a myth," Muldoon once told the writer. "My ability to handle Sullivan lay in John's faith in me and my insistence before I would accept the training job that he obey me in every particular.

JOHN L. KEPT WORD

Sullivan was a man of his word. No man in the world ever would go at John L. Sullivan with baseball bat and live to tell it."

Muldoon, who has seen every champion from John Morrissey to Gene Tunney, often said that Sullivan was the greatest of them all. Muldoon admired Dempsey as a fighter and Gene Tunney as a man and often eulogized them, but in private talks Muldoon repeatedly said that Sullivan in condition could whip any man that ever stood in shoe leather.

Muldoon's portrayal of Charles the Wrestler in Shakespeare's As You Like It, with Mme Modjeska, earned the commendation of all the critics. Muldoon physically was framed for the part. But the part called for him to be thrown nightly and that irked his proud and haughty spirit tremendously.

Of the many anecdotes we have heard Muldoon tell of the stage there is one we recall most vividly. It was while he was playing with the elder Barrymore.

"One night while I stood in the wings," said Muldoon, "Maurice Barrymore came out of his room and placing a tiny bundle in my arms said:

"'Here, William, hold her for a minute.'

"The little bundle I held in my arms was destined to become one of the world's greatest actresses. It was Ethel Barrymore."

Chicago Ring Fans Favor Schmeling. Can Teuton Take It? Big Question Now.

BILL CORUM

Chicago, June 3 (US)—Mr. Jack Dempsey, New Yok City.

Dear Jack—Suppose you are wondering what I am doing out here during the final stages of the promotion of your big fight between the two thumping Maxes (Schmeling and Baer to you new readers from Waterloo, Iowa.) The truth is, Jack, I don't exactly know. I get to wandering around like this at times.

Of course, there are so many big shows going on around the country just now that a fellow who craves excitement hardly knows which side his toast is buttered on—if it is buttered toast.

In New York your fight—undoubtedly one of the major sporting spectacles of the season—is less than a week off.

I see from the papers that down in Washington the senatorial follies of 1933 has hooked J. Pierpont Morgan in what looks from the pictures to be a ventriloquist act with a midget.

It is an axiom that a cat can look at a queen, but never would the world have believed that a circus midget could perch on the knee of the head of the House of Morgan. Still, if somebody from the circus had to sit on his knee, better the midget than the fat lady.

What an age we are living in, eh, Jack?

WESTERNERS LIKE TEUTON

But to get back to the sweet science of scrambling ears, which is the one you and I know most about, there seems to be a keen interest in your fight hereabouts.

The sentiment here seems stronger for Schmeling than in the East. I don't know why unless perhaps there are more Germans hereabouts. I figured that the local ring worms, having seen Baer bounce the likes of Schaaf and Griffiths about, would give him a good chance. But most of them seem to be stringing along with Max from over the Rhine.

The German boy is the choice on form, of course. He is what racing men would call the solid horse. We know what he will do under any circumstances except, it seems to me, one—how will he act under a really hard punch.

I have seen him hit sharp punches and jarring ones but never have I seen him tagged with the sort of stock of dynamite Mr. Baer carries clutched in that right hand.

Sharkey did to Schmeling in their first fight exactly what he did to you in the early rounds, Jack. Herded him about the ring and jabbed and hooked him dizzy. But they were jabs and hooks, not finishing blows. Not even what passes for Sharkey's finishing blows, and he will tell you himself that he never saw the day he could hit as hard as Baer.

BAER MUST CATCH FOE

It is necessary, of course, to catch your chicken before you can pick it, and Baer may never get around to nailing Herr Max. Just as Herr Max never got around to nailing Sharkey in that last fight, when nobody robbed him half as much as he robbed himself by stolidly shuffling forward doing nothing much but catch left jabs with his chin.

His near and dear friends have screamed loud and long at the officials over the decision in that one. But all their agonized cries have failed to obscure the clear picture of Schmeling shuffling endlessly forward but doing nothing whatever after he got there.

That night he plainly fought Sharkey's fight, playing squarely into the hands of a tired old guy who had nothing left at the finish but an educated left jab.

But if Max fights the other Max's (Baer's) fight next Thursday we are apt to see a very different sort of contest. Because whatever else it is Baer's fight is sure to be rough and rowdy.

I anticipate a large evening.

As always,

Bill.

Only up to the point where they interfere with the Shepard Stores' quest for the Retail Stores Golf League championship, have comptroller's conventions a staunch supporter in John Shepard, 3d.

Therefore, Ben Black was forced to race back from Chicago by plane and train to take his place in the Shepard lineup against the C. F. Hovey Co. at Woodland in the four-ball matches.

At 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon Black was playing golf at Olympia Fields, Chicago. Ben left the Windy City on the 8 p. m. plane, Thursday night for Cleveland where he made train connections for Boston. John Shepard, 3d, met Black at the Huntington ave. station and rushed him to Woodland.

SHEPARD TEAM LEADS

And so the Shepard Stores are now occupants of first place, having broken a deadlock by defeating Hovey, 4½ to 1½.

John Shepard, 3d, and Robert Shepard topped the only previously unbeaten pair in the league, Joe Howe and John Roche, Hovey's, 2 to 1.

Although tired from his plane and train rides, Black and his partner, H. M. Uline, snared 2½ points from Henry Coyne and Carter Hoyt, giving the Shepard Stores a 2½ point lead on Wm. Filene's Sons Co.

While the Shepard Stores team was dissolving the first place tie with C. H. Hovey, the E. T. Slattery Co. took enough points from Jordan Marsh Co. to step from seventh to a third place tie. Edmund O'Connell and Art Huguley captured all three points from Robert Mitton and Warren Carey. Paul Carver and Herb Kelly, after being all over at the turn, won the inward nine and the match from R. H. Edwards, Jr., and Roy W. Dodge.

FILENE LINEUP SHIFTED

There was another shakeup in the Filene lineup, Jack Egan moving up to the No. 1 team to pair up with Jack McCarthy and Paul Hennessey making his four-ball debut as Capt. George Saxe's helpmate. McCarthy and Egan won a 2½ to ½ decision over Bill Nugent, Jr., and Henry Bradford, Sears Roebuck Co. George Saxe and Paul Hennessey got an even division of the points.

The Gilchrist-White match, which was late starting, went to the former by a score of 4 to 2. Maurise Clark and M. G. Balmayne took Charlie Coyne and Charlie Barry over the jumps for 2½ points.

H. W. Schaschke and Henry Wyman broke even, with Charlie Kemp and Fred Crawford, giving Gilchrist the edge, along with pulling their store out of last place.

B. C. TRACKMEN MEET N. H.

The Boston College track team settles its dispute over the captaincy of next year's team this afternoon after the final dual meet with the University of New Hampshire at University Heights.

With the possibility of a co-captaincy arising from a tie in the voting for Paul Dailey and John McManus, interest is high at B. C. in the affair.

Following the annual Holy Cross meet, Paul Dailey, half-miler, was chosen by one vote over McManus but the election was declared invalid.

The University of New Hampshire brings an undefeated team to University Heights this afternoon and will test the Ryder men to their utmost. The B. C. team has won but one dual meet this season, against Bowdoin, but has several individual stars.

Capt. Bob Jordan, Ralph Ward, Phil Couhig, Frank Lang, Ed Carey and John Carey are outstanding B. C. trackmen.

Suntan Laughs at Stone Wall in Millwood Hunters' Class

Suntan, the brown gelding owned by Noel Morss is shown taking a stone wall barrier in easy fashion in the competition for middleweight hunters in the Millwood show at the Bird estate, Framingham. Suntan's performance only earned fourth place in the comp etition, however. Compton Smith was in the saddle for the jumping. The Millwood show, a two-day affair, concludes today.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

After a fine uphill fight, The Shepard Stores team now is out in front in the race for the Retail Stores Golf League championship.

At the end of the second match, Shepard's was in fifth place but by shutting out Filene 6 to 0 a week ago and beating Hovey's 4½ to 1½ at Woodland, went into full possession of first place.

Don't let anyone tell you that the Shepard Stores players are not taking seriously the battle for the four-ball championship. They fight for every point and as a result have won 11½ out of a possible 12 points in their last two matches.

John Shepard, 3d, stole the show again at Woodland. He holed out a niblick shot for a birdie at the home hole, after his second shot, played from a bad lie had been pulled into the deep rough to the left of the green. It was a great shot, and it gave the Shepard brothers the odd point over Joe Howe and John Roche, C. F. Hovey Co.

Coyne Ace Putter

Although Charlie Coyne and Charlie Barry corralled only a half-point from Maurice Clark and M. G. Balmayne, of Gilchrist's, the R. H. White pair gave their opponents plenty of thrills on the greens. Charlie Coyne had only 29 putts, and five consecutive one-putt greens.

If the E. T. Slattery team steadies down, it will be very much in the fight for the Retail Stores Golf League title. After breaking even with White's in the opening match, Slattery's pinned a 4 to 2 defeat on Shepard's but dropped to seventh place by winding up on the short end of a 5 to 1 match with Sears Roebuck. Slattery hit its stride again at Woodland, took all by a half point from Jordan Marsh Co. and now is tied with C. F. Hovey for third place.

The Jordan Marsh Co. has a fine golfer in Roy Dodge. Although he has not been consistent, Dodge will be a tough opponent for any member of the league as soon as he improves his timing.

Warren Carey, Jordan Marsh Co., pulled one of the prize shots of the day at Woodland. Carey sliced his iron shot off the 5th tee and the ball landed and stayed on the roof of the tool house, on the site of the old 10th green.

Store Owners Duel

During the annual Retail Trade Board tournament next week at Weston, there will be a special nine-hole tourney for store owners, in which John Shepard, 2d, A. Lincoln Filene, George Mitton, S. S. Conrad and Barry Bacon will compete. P. A. O'Connell was to have played but he will be in Minneapolis.

In the order named, Slattery, White, Filene, Shepard and Hovey teams will draw byes in the remaining Retail Stores Golf League matches.

Joe Howe and John Roche yielded points yesterday for the first time this season. John Shepard, 3d, and his brother, Robert, nicked the previously undefeated C. F. Hovey combination for two points.

Edmund O'Connell and Art Huguley of the E. T. Slattery Co. were the only pair that won all three points at Woodland. And they made their cleanup from none other than Bob Mitton and Warren Carey, Jordan Marsh Co.

MILLWOOD HUNT FINALS TODAY

Thrilling competition again was carded today at the Framingham estate of Reginald W. Bird, where the second day of the annual two-day Millwood Hunt show started this a. m.

Events of the opening day of this hunter and hound and beagle show attracted a large throng. Among the standouts of the initial day's competition were performances of Mrs. Gardiner H. Fiske's bay mare, Coquette, Ard Righ Hunter stable's chestnut gelding, Longacre, and Stony Farm's bay gelding, The Tease.

Olympic course jumping honors went to The Tease, shown faultlessly by Jeanne Daniels of Worcester.

Leagues Diamond Dust

That Cleveland club which was going so poorly a week back that Manager Roger Peckinpaugh was told to "start winning at once or step out" is tied for second place today as a result of winning a double-header from the Browns, 2 to 1 and 1 to 0.

Oral Hildebrand gave only four hits while winning his seventh game in nine starts in the opener. The Browns' lone run was a homer by Campbell in the ninth. Lynn 'Bump' Hadley gave the Indians only four safeties in the opener, but two of them were doubles and good for a first-inning run. The Browns found Mel Harder for six hits, but couldn't bunch them.

Grove String Snapped

The first game of the so-called crucial series between the league-leading Yankees and the Athletics found the New Yorkers winning, 5 to 4, to increase their lead to 3½ games and knock the A's from second to fourth place. Lefty Grove, going in to protect a one-run lead in the eighth, was found for two runs and charged with the defeat. It was his ninth relief performance in the past 18 games and the first time in that stretch that the A's didn't win.

Six runs in the fifth and five more in the sixth gave the Giants an 11 to 3 win over the Phillies, who made 14 hits off Carl Hubbell and dropped four full games into the cellar for their trouble.

Pitching his first game in an age, Red Herring held the White Sox to six hits and Al Simmons hitless and the Tigers were hammering a trio of White Sox hurlers for 16 hits and a 14 to 1 triumph. Marvin Owen was the Bengals big sticker with a triple, double and three singles.

Though Johnny Hodapp made but one hit in four times up in the second game against the Senators, he leads the hitters of both major leagues by a margin of eight points today. The Sox second-sacker is hitting for .374 with Al Simmons in second place with .366.

Sammy West of the Browns, who was tied with Hodapp for first place, failed to hit in five time up and dropped out of the 'Big Six' for the first time this season. Fenway Johnny has now hit safely in 13 straight games.

"We want Shires," yelled some grandstand wit when Buck Jordan, Tribal first sacker, stepped to the plate for the first time against the Dodgers in Friday's double-header at the Wigwam. Buck singled on that occasion and made two doubles and a single thereafter during the matinee.

EAGLES VISIT FRIAR NINE

Providence, June 3—A vengeful Providence College nine will attempt to even up a 3-2 loss it suffered at the hands of Boston College several weeks ago when the two teams meet here this afternoon.

Bob Duffy, hard-hitting left-handed pitcher of the Eagles, will be on the mound for Boston College and Ed Quinton will twirl for the Friars. Quinton has lost but four games in 27 starts.

The Providence team is leading the race to date for intercollegiate championship honors, and a win over Boston College would about clinch the flag for the Dominicans.

Coach Frank McCrehan of Boston College will put a new pitching find on the mound in Bill Boehner if the going gets rough. Boehner is left fielder on the nine and one of the leading sluggers.

2 NEW PILOTS FOR BOSTON TWI NINES

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Managerial, as well as playing changes, are taking place in the Boston Twilight League. John Sullivan, former manager of the East Cambridge club, has taken up the reins over the University City Club and will have a new batting array when the team plays at Hoyt Field next Monday evening. Red Campbell, former Somerville high and St. Mary's star, will pilot the Hagan Club. Johnny Holden will shift to the business end.

Bill Stephenson of the North Cambridge A. A. will play in the infield on Frank Macrehan's N. Cambridge K. of C. team. Billy is hitting better than .300.

Quinn Playing Pilot

Joe Quinn of the Raymonds is the only playing manager in the Intersuburban League. He is putting up a great game in the short field.

Regular weekly meeting closed to managers and directors of the Intersuburban League will be held Mondays at 9 p. m., at the Somerset Club, 615 Somerville ave., Somerville.

Other Twilight League clubs say the league leading C. M. A. C. team of Lowell must be carrying around a rabbit's foot. They say the Lowell boys are getting all the best of the breaks and that sooner or later luck will turn.

Frank Smith, Morey Hubley and Al Norton are hitting .300 and playing a great game for the St. Josephs of Salem.

The Salem-Allston clash at Smith Field, Allston, tomorrow, should be one of the best games of the season.

Rea's timely hitting is one reason why the C. M. A. C. team is leading the Boston Twilight League. The Concannon brothers have to travel from Dorchester to Lowell to play for the C. M. A. C.'s.

LEVINSKY'S PURSE HELD UP AFTER VICTORY

PROBE PLANNED OF KING'S WIN OVER TUFFY

Chicago, June 3 (AP) King Levinsky, Chicago's celebrated fish pedlar, defeated Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City, Iowa, heavyweight, in ten bruising rounds in Mill Stadium, opening the outdoor boxing season.

REFEREE ROUGHED

Chairman Joseph Triner of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, announced today that Levinsky's purse would be held up pending an investigation into the fighter's conduct in the ring.

Levinsky, Triner said, was guilty of roughing not only Griffiths, but Referee Collins.

Griffiths said he sustained a severe fracture of the right hand in the second round.

The vote of the two judges and Referee Little Phil Collins was unanimous.

Griffiths was outweighed 16 pounds at 186.

ROPER VICTOR

Jack Roper, Cleveland, scored a decisive eight round decision victory over Frankie Simms, Cleveland, in the eight-round semi wind-up.

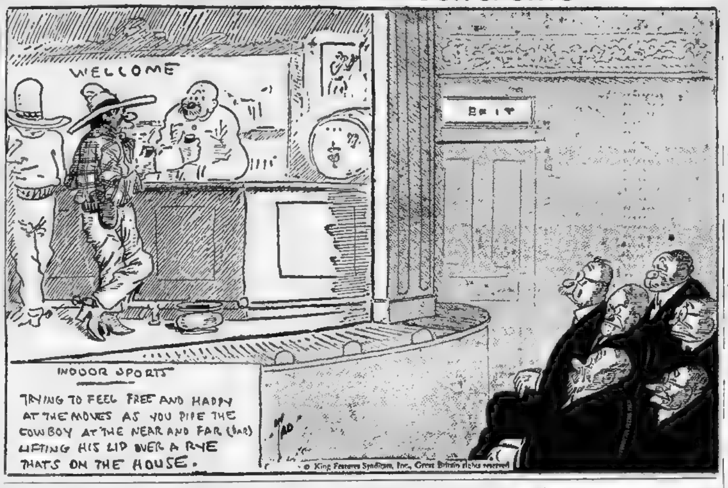

Marty Sampson, New York middleweight, was awarded a technical knockout over Tony De Marco of Cleveland in the seventh round when a left hook to the chin knocked De Marco out of the ring. De Marco disqualified himself by dropping to his knees to wait out a count of nine after he scrambled back into the ring.

CLAN, SWEDISH SOCCER TEAMS IN CUP FINAL

The Clan McGregor soccer eleven of Quincy will represent a revamped lineup when it faces the Swedish Sport Club of Springfield at Lincoln Park, South End, tomorrow in the second and final game of the State Cup series.

Jack McGonnigle will be moved to left half and John Doherty, now playing that position will be shifted to inside left.

Both outfits are prepared to go through the full 90 minutes, and extra periods if necessary.

Vice-President James Robertson of the State Association and several hundred fans will make the trip from Springfield.

A record crowd is expected when Referee Pete Carrigan sends the elevens into action, as it is the first appearance here of the smart Swedish eleven.

Sacrificing defensive strength in order to increase the batting power of the Harvard nine, Coach Fred Mitchell benched a pair of regulars and shifted about his lineup again for the traditional battle with Holy Cross at Soldiers Field this afternoon.

Realizing that the Crusaders possess the strongest punch in intercollegiate baseball circles, the Harvard mentor decided in favor of harder hitters who have been gracing the bench.

LUPIEN IN LEFT FIELD

Ted Lupien, brother of the former Harvard captain, is placed in left field in place of Frank Gleason, who moves back to first base. Murmes, pinch hitter extraordinary, fills Ham Thacher's third base position, with Woodruff going to shortstop.

Capt. Jim McCaffrey and Ware complete the outfield roster, in center and right, respectively. Phil Hines plays second, batting cleanup behind Charlie Nevin, slugging backstop. Eddie Loughlin and Nevin are the starting battery.

Loughlin was harshly treated by the Crusaders at Worcester. But the rest of the team fell down miserably at the plate and he had no incentive to win. With a full week's rest behind him, the little Concord hurler may stop the Crusaders.

MULLIGAN H. C. HURLER

Joe Mulligan, conquerer of Harvard in the first game, toes the mound for the Crusaders.

The Crusader lineup is one of the strongest Barry has developed. Frank Cammarano, at first, Al Niemic at third, Don Maynard, catcher, and Marty Murray, left field, are three-year veterans.

Practically every member of the varsity is batting over .300 and Ed Britt, the home run slugger, is leading the pack with a .450 average.

MASS. BAY Y. C. FETE TODAY

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

The yachting season, which got off to a flying start on Memorial Day, will be given more momentum today with a number of minor regattas up and down the North and South shores, and the veteran skippers are hoping for clear skies and spanking breezes.

Center of activities today will be along the South Boston coast line where, in the afternoon, the South Boston Yacht Club continues with its second interclub regatta and where, in the evening, the Massachusetts' Bay Yacht Club Association will hold its annual banquet at the Columbia Yacht Club in South Boston.

In the S. B. Y. C. regatta five classes of yachts will unfurl their sails to the breezes and dot the harbor from Columbus Beach to the Boston Light.

The classes which will sail today are the South Boston 15-footers, Snipes, Snowbirds, Cranes and Indians. The races will be a fitting prelude to the large and colorful gathering of yachtsmen at the Columbia Yacht Club.

John Looney, commodore of the Columbia Yacht Club, is chairman of the event and predicts a record throng for the association is made up of all clubs on the North and South Shores, 33 in all.

Oscar Bostell is commodore of the Massachusetts Bay Yacht Club Association and, with Looney, has made extensive preparations for tonight's' affair.

Of all the bullish advices and [illegible], the orders railroads are placing for new equipment are the most impressive. Here is a gigantic user of steel replacing worn-out and obsolete equipment. The possibilities presented are hard to calculate. It usually means prosperity for the steel industry.

The action of International Telephone and Western Union present a market oddity. Both are up in some part on rumors that the White Act will be repealed so that the latter may absorb Postal Telegraph. One celebrates a sale and the other a purchase. Everybody is happy.

The cheapest stock on the big board is U. S. Steel, in the opinion of some brokers. They point out that the company is apparently in a position to make back payments on the stock. After that it is not too great a step to regular disbursements.

BOSTON STOCKS ARE MIXED

Share prices were mixed at the close of today's short session of trading on the Boston Stock Exchange. Week-end profit-taking wiped out earlier gains. Many issues sold at new highs for the year in the first period of trading.

American Telephone was down about 2 points at the close, after touching a new high for the year. Edison Electric was 3 points higher at the close and Boston Elevated showed a gain of a point at its closing price of 65. Boston & Maine issues were active and higher with the prior preferred and A stamped issues selling at new tops.

Atchison closed down slightly more than a point after touching a new top. Before the profit-taking appeared new tops were recorded for Boston & Albany, Boston ePrsonal Property, Aviation Securities, Eastern Steamship second preferred and General Electric.

Maine Central preferred and Northern N. H. were at fresh 1933 peaks on gains of 2 to 4 or more points. Losses of a point or more were recorded for New Haven, Mohawk, Stone & Webster and Economy Stores.

Recent sales have been closed readily at 32-33c in the grease for strictly combing Ohio and similar bright fleeces of 56s and 48s, 50s qualities. ## BROAD ACTION IS NEEDED, SAYS HANEY

By LEWIS HANEY,
Professor of Economics, New York University.

New York, June 3—What is the logic of government participating in business affairs?

A safe general principle to start with is this: The burden is on anyone who advocates that the government undertake any business operations which individuals could perform.

This is true because a government is merely a potentially perpetual association of interrelated individuals, and exists for the welfare of those individuals and their posterity. The only beings who feel want and who undergo costs are individuals. Furthermore, the wants and the costs of the citizen individuals are different in each case, hardly any two men being alike in tastes or capacities.

(1) Any government interference in business means that some individuals (whether a majority or not) are doing something to or for other individuals. Almost inevitably this is the same as saying that government action means the enforcement of some people's opinion (say of prohibitionists, or farmers, or debtors) as to what is good for other people (say "wets," or city dwellers, or creditors).

WANTS AND COSTS

(2) It is impossible through government action to balance directly the satisfaction of human wants and the costs involved; for the persons who pay the most for the improvement of some watershed may live thousands of miles away, and most of those who vote taxes pay none themselves.

(3) Government action must be broad and liberal, dealing with the whole nation, or at most, with broad classes. This inevitably leads to "regimentation" and to standardization, and thus runs counter to individual differences in many ways. Especially, it prevents the allowances of differences in rewards according to different productive capacities, and differences in services and products according to differences in the tastes of consumers.

Unquestionably, the government has certain advantages in power and scope, and in certain fields its positive functioning is justified.

We may say that (1) wherever there is no motive for individuals to perform adequately a service of fundamental and general importance.

(2)—Wherever individuals are led by self-interest to do things which run counter to the interests of the majority so as to reduce the total net welfare the government may wisely step in. (Of course, we take for granted practices injurious to public health will be prohibited.)

MISTKES INVOLVE NATION

Supplying pure water, sanitation, education, libraries, reforestation, postal service, highways and lighthouses, illustrates the first point. (In some of these cases, the inequality of individual purchasing power makes the profit motive inadequate.)

In the second case, the usual recourse has been to seek "regulation" to prevent antisocial acts by individuals, as in (A) the waste of limited natural resources (coal and oil), or (B) the abuse of "natural monopolies" (power and light, telephones, railways, etc.). It is often an open question whether such public service industries may not be best operated by the government, and if the government itself were honest and efficient, the answer would generally be in the affirmative.

We should recognize certain distinct disadvantages which necessarily characterize the government in business.

(1) Government operation is rigid, and slow to adapt itself to changes. On the one hand it lacks progressiveness; on the other, it makes very costly experiments. "Five-Year Plans" are adopted in a world which requires frequent changes.

(2) Motivation is unfavorable to efficiency, government officials have great power, but inadequate responsibility for their acts. There is no close or continuous testing of their efficiency, and their rewards are not based on results secured.

(3) Mistakes when made are very serious, because they involve the whole nation.

We wonder if someone isn't going to sit on the parade with all this high jinks around. However, the market is certainly doing one grand job and taking all the stock offered for sale in its stride.

It amuses us to see an advisory service bearish in its general advice yet taking a bullish attitude on individual stocks.

LEADERS DOWN 1 TO 3 POINTS ON WEEK-END

New York, June 3 — Leading shares dipped one to three points in the short session of the New York Stock Exchange today. Profit taking, reduction of week-end commitments and other hurdles checked the advance, and declines were general in both shares and staples.

[illegible] rounded out the week with another display of strength in many of the secondary issues. The domestic list as a whole was firm. There were a few fairly sharp recessions in issues which compiled big advances yesterday. Trading continued in heavy volume.

CLOSING IS HEAVY

In the shares market late rallying efforts in leaders retrieved some of the earlier losses, but the close was rather heavy, trading volume was unusually large, transactions approximating 3,800,000 shares.

The stock market started off at a fast pace, blocks of 1000 to 12,000 shares changing hands. Losses of 1 to 3 or more points were suffered by leading issues following their climb yesterday to the highest levels since 1931. Rails and utilities resisted for a while, but they, too, slid off when supporting orders in other divisions failed to bring any substantial recovery.

Wheat, corn and cotton dropped while stocks and bar silver lost ⅛ of a cent at 35¼ cents an ounce. Wheat declines approximated a cent and corn eased around ½ a cent. Cotton was particularly heavy, losing 90 cents to $1.30 a bale. Bonds were fairly steady, although some of the more speculative loans were a trifle reactionary. Foreign exchanges were comparatively steady.

GAIN IN CARLOADINGS

Stocks apparently ignored the report on freight carloadings for the week ended May 27, which showed an advance of 9691 over the previous week to a total of 541,309, or 20,000 ahead of the similar week in 1932. The increase in traffic, however, was about according to previous estimates.

General business and trade news continued favorable for the market. Steel and electric power output were showing resistance to seasonal declines and automobile production was at its top level for the year.

Share losers of 1 to around 3 points included American Can, Corn Products, U. S. Steel, Drug, Chrysler, Santa Fe, McIntyre, Porcupine, Anaconda, American Telephone, Westinghouse, Montgomery Ward, Case, Du Pont, Consolidated Gas, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Delaware Hudson, Union Pacific, American Tobacco B, New York Central and Sears Roebuck. Allied Chemical steadied and National Distillers and Loew's rallied.

The financial district was especially interested in the overnight news from Washington on the close vote by which the Senate finance committee favored the industries control feature of the administration's national recovery bill. While this feature was retained, the fact that the committee voted to eliminate the provision giving the President licensing power over industries was the the subject of much discussion in the banking sector.

At the same time speculative enthusiasm appeared slightly dampened by a financial ticker report from the capital that the administration was closely watching the trend of prices on the stock exchange with the view that the recent movement of shares and commodities has been unusually rapid.

This dispatch intimated that some steps might be taken to warn against speculative frenzy which would tend to put share and commodity prices out of bounds and thus interfere with the Government's plans for a steady and sound recovery.

Grains End Lower in Chicago Market

Chicago, June 3 (AP)—Jolted by statements attributed to Secretary Wallace that speculative price advances of late had interfered with operation of the farm relief act, grain prices receded today. Another statement ascribed to Secretary Wallace indicated there would be no control measures for the 1933 wheat crop.

Wheat closed nervous, 1⅛-⅜ under yesterday's finish; corn ½-⅞ down, oats ⅛-½ off and provisions unchanged to 20 cents decline.

CLEARING THINGS UP

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat.)

Statement from Norris Crum:

In regard to the Ledbetter school fight, I want to get some of the facts straight, as the paper stated I was on the school board when Catherine was employed as teacher two years ago. That is not true. I have not been one of the board for two years 'til this election. Mr. Cundiff and Mrs. Simms were on the board.

As to a conversation between I and Mrs. Simms, there wasn't any. I was standing talking to Charles Thiebaud when Mrs. Simms came out the door and she said if I said she had ever been in my mail box I was a dam liar that is why I said what I did. I don't call that school trouble. Also if Joe Ihms and Mrs. Simms had kept their mouths shut there wouldn't have been a fight. As to Mell Simms blacking my eye anyone can do that by walking up and hitting them when standing in the dark.

PANGYMNASTIKON

Or the Gymnasium Exercises Within the Compass of a Single Apparatus as Developed by D. G. M. Schreber, M. D., Director of the Gymnastic Institution of Leipsic, 1862.

One of our research engineers, whose name is Lein (Alfred F.), has spent considerable time sniffing around garrets in search of lost secrets of civilization. While he has not found a treasure eclipsing King Tut's tomb, he has dug up a copy of "Pangymnastikon," which shows that Victorians overcame afflictions of chest, abdomen, spine and nervous system" by stepping over a string. (Barbed wire had not then been invented.) It seems to us that perhaps at no other time in history has there been such a need as now for stepping over strings. Surely we do not wish to become a nation suffering from chest, abdominal, spinal and nervous disorders. If this contention is in error, we will gladly print a retraction. If we are right, we intend to harp on this matter until the American people take the only course consistent with honor.

Forcing Straitjacket on American Industry

American industry has finally awakened to the fact that its most vital operations are in danger of being forced into a Federal straitjacket by act of Congress.

This is why hundreds of wage payers, representing every field of industry, are urging drastic revision by the Senate of the measure recently passed by the House under the euphonious title of the National Industrial Recovery bill.

The main objection to this measure, as it was put through the House under "gag" rule, was well set forth by Congressman Cox, of Georgia, when it was before the House.

Mr. Cox contrasted the delegation of legislative power granted by this bill with other delegations of power made by Congress at the present session. He said:

"In this bill Congress delegates power which it does not possess.

"The power to regulate the internal affairs of the States.

"The power to control all industry from the point of production to that of distribution.

"The power to regulate hours of labor and to fix wages.

"It is the most gigantic price-fixing scheme ever proposed in the history of any free government."

The theory of this bill, as Congressman Beck, of Pennsylvania, made plain to the House, is that "unless the manufacturer conforms to the wishes of the Federal Government in regard to the hours of labor, his maximum output, a minimum wage law and other restrictions, he can not only be proscribed by his own Government, but denied the privilege of selling his product in interstate trade."

And the most dangerous and indefensible part about this delegation by Congress of that power that it does not possess is that no rule is laid down by the legislative branch to guide the agent of the executive branch in the exercise of all these dictatorial powers.

No code of fair competition having the force of law is set forth in this measure. Such a code would have to be created by the executive agent to whom the administration of this measure is entrusted.

The policy of Congress declared by this measure is directly in conflict with the disastrous results upon honest industry which the enactment of the House bill into law would inevitably produce.

Instead of removing "obstructions to the free flow of interstate commerce," the dictatorship provided for by this measure would multiply them.

Instead of encouraging co-operation among trade groups, the arbitrary power granted by the House bill would make co-operative action impossible.

Instead of reducing and relieving unemployment, the body-blow to industry which this measure would deal could not but increase unemployment.

This measure as it passed the House is the most flagrant example offered at the present session of the danger incurred when either house of Congress surrenders powers which it has no right to surrender—and in this case powers which it does not even possess.

Fortunately for the freedom and future welfare of private enterprise this measure cannot pass the Senate without adequate examination and debate.

And the more the Senate examines and debates this legislative proposal the more obvious will become the public necessity of eliminating from it those arbitrary provisions which might be acceptable to the Russian people but will surely prove intolerable to the free people of the United States.

Look for the Brand

Sweatshop Goods to Be Marked

The public, in righteous indignation, are turning away from the products of sweatshop labor.

They are declining to buy the goods made out of the starvation wages of women and girls.

Their decision is now made easier for them to put into effect.

Thanks to Governor Ely and the Legislature, a law has been enacted which permits goods to be branded as the output of sweatshops which have declined to pay their workers a minimum wage, or a living and saving wage.

Like John Hancock's signature on the Declaration of Independence, the people should now be able to read this brand "without spectacles."

Is there any justification in good conscience for refusing to patronize the goods exacted from the sweat of underpaid women and children?

This question seems to be well answered by America, the Catholic weekly published by the Jesuit order.

"Most people," says America, "will feel obliged in charity to refuse to buy them, even if it costs them a sacrifice to do so.

"If our people are tired of fine talk about social justice, and many of them are, here is a practical line in which clergy and laity alike can join, to the great good of our fellow man, and the fair name of the Catholic Church."

There has never been an issue which has bound together the people in all walks of life more unitedly.

Navy Goes 'Softy'

They are going to abolish profanity in the Navy.

If a sailor slips on a polished deck and says ——, he may be dragged before a court-martial board.

We are making astounding progress in the social proprieties.

Imagine the able-bodied seaman, who chewed tobacco and drank his whiskey straight. You will find him any Tuesday afternoon now, at a crochet party in the Captain's cabin.

The Morgan System Is Bared to Public Gaze

—By Julius G. Berens—

Financial Editor, New York American.

We sincerely hope the American public appreciates the most significant revelation of all the startling developments accruing from the historic Morgan inquiry now under way at Washington.

We trust the public recognizes the disclosure of a vast SUPER GOVERNMENT which HERETOFORE has dominated the United States FINANCIALLY AND POLITICALLY.

Long suspected, its influence and activities have been felt by every citizen of the United States even though the great majority have not recognized the direct contact with themselves.

Brought out into the open, subjected to the sunlight of PUBLIC KNOWLEDGE, this SUPER GOVERNMENT shrivels as quickly as did the Morgan partners on the witness stand.

Such SUPER GOVERNMENTS thrive on SECRECY.

Exposed to the glare of Public Knowledge, they cannot exist.

The public can now appreciate why the Hearst newspapers have insistently advocated wide-open Federal investigation of Private Bankers, and why the present inquiry MUST NOT BE HANDICAPPED IN ANY WAY WHATSOEVER.

The House of Morgan exercised its power through clever manipulation of favors.

PERSONS IN HIGH POLITICAL POSITIONS, Government officials leaders in the great banks and in industry were acceptable to the House of Morgan as "friends."

And as such "friends" these individuals in the seats of the mighty were beneficiaries of the gratuities so wholeheartedly given them by Morgan.

The former Chairman of the Democratic National Committee frankly expressed his hope and willingness to "reciprocate" for the Morgan favors.

The House of Morgan expected everybody who participated in its beneficence to "RECIPROCATE" in one way or another.

The House of Morgan assiduously selected only the most powerful individuals in the land AND THE POTENTIALLY MOST INFLUENTIAL as its "friends."

The secret of the House of Morgan's power was not the brilliancy of the Morgan partners.

It was not the Morgan millions as such.

This Morgan power WAS BOUGHT AND PAID FOR by gratuities, largess, favors—call it what you will.

Let the investigation continue without restraint so that the public can become still more familiar with this SUPER GOVERNMENT and thus bring about its end!

Then, indeed, will the United States exist for the welfare of the whole citizenry, instead of for a chosen few!

The Human Side of the News

Speed on Land, Sea and Air, Transportation Keynote

By EDWIN C. HILL

The Nation's Foremost Reporter and Famous Radio News Commentator

Just as the New York Central's famous old "999," the fastest locomotive that ever burned a record over steel rails, arrives at the Chicago Exposition, young Mr. Averill Harriman prepares to build for the great Union Pacific Railroad a lightweight, streamlined passenger train guaranteed for 110 miles an hour and an average run of 90 miles an hour.

And almost at the same moment the English claim the world's train speed record for their "Cheltenham Flyer" which has rattled off the 77 miles between Swindon and London, over the Great Western Railway, at 81.8 miles an hour. And the Germans have entered the railway high speed competition with their streamlined motor train which splits the breeze between Berlin and Hamburg at 76 miles an hour for the steady run of 180 miles.

Speed is the keynote of modern transportation, on sea and land and air, and the race is on among the locomotive assembly, automotive and airplane builders of half a dozen countries. But good old "999," reposing quietly in her stall at the Century of Progress Exposition, admired by thousands, can laugh at all these modern sea and land speed machines. They have a long way yet to go before they touch her record of 112½ miles an hour, made the day she snatched the Empire State Express from New York to Buffalo, May 10, 1893.

Wonder Run of Old Engine "999"

Gray-haired old engine drivers, yarning about the good old days, still talk about the wonder run "999" made between Buffalo and Batavia. And the engineer who drove her that blazing day is the same man who took her so proudly out to Chicago just the other day—Charley Hogan, Hogan of Buffalo. It was on May 9, as Charley Hogan tells the story, that "999" roared off 102 miles an hour, jerking the Empire State in a black blur of speed from Rochester to Buffalo. But Charley Hogan felt sure that "the old girl" could shake a livelier leg even than that, so he gave her a good night's rest at Buffalo and slicked her up and took her out on May 10 and told her to do her best for the honor of the Vanderbilts and the Hogans.

Yes, of one thing you may be sure. "Who has known heights and depths shall not again know peace."

That is the price of "really living."

And what do you buy for that price?

A glimpse of Beauty. A longing for Justice. A fury for Decency and Order. A reverence for Love—and the terrible, priceless gift of Freedom.

Blurred visions, which will haunt and upset you all your life.

YET THEY, ALONE, CAN MAKE A LIFE WORTH WHILE. AND ALL THE REST—WE SHARE WITH LESSER BEASTS.

And almost at the same moment the English claim the world's train speed record for their "Cheltenham Flyer" which has rattled off the 77 miles between Swindon and London, over the Great Western Railway, at 81.8 miles an hour. And the Germans have entered the railway high speed competition with their streamlined motor train which splits the breeze between Berlin and Hamburg at 76 miles an hour for the steady run of 180 miles.

Speed is the keynote of modern transportation, on sea and land and air, and the race is on among the locomotive assembly, automotive and airplane builders of half a dozen countries. But good old "999," reposing quietly in her stall at the Century of Progress Exposition, admired by thousands, can laugh at all these modern sea and land speed machines. They have a long way yet to go before they touch her record of 112½ miles an hour, made the day she snatched the Empire State Express from New York to Buffalo, May 10, 1893.

Wonder Run of Old Engine "999"

Gray-haired old engine drivers, yarning about the good old days, still talk about the wonder run "999" made between Buffalo and Batavia. And the engineer who drove her that blazing day is the same man who took her so proudly out to Chicago just the other day—Charley Hogan, Hogan of Buffalo. It was on May 9, as Charley Hogan tells the story, that "999" roared off 102 miles an hour, jerking the Empire State in a black blur of speed from Rochester to Buffalo. But Charley Hogan felt sure that "the old girl" could shake a livelier leg even than that, so he gave her a good night's rest at Buffalo and slicked her up and took her out on May 10 and told her to do her best for the honor of the Vanderbilts and the Hogans.

Yes, of one thing you may be sure. "Who has known heights and depths shall not again know peace."

That is the price of "really living."

And what do you buy for that price?

A glimpse of Beauty. A longing for Justice. A fury for Decency and Order. A reverence for Love—and the terrible, priceless gift of Freedom.

Blurred visions, which will haunt and upset you all your life.

New York Day by Day

The City at 4 A. M.

NEW YORK, June 3—My friend, a philosopher, urged a variation of routine as a mental perk. New York and its treadmill routine, he declared, has a way of pinning us into a corner. Now and then one should cast off the shackles. Do something different! So I left a call for 4 a. m.

The city at such an hour is a blur of greyliac. The people you see have expressions smudged with sleep. Even slinking cats have lost the thrill of vicarious romance. In the winey exultation of morning air I stood on a curb, gazing up and down the chasmed street.

A policeman somersaulting his night stick at the end of its leather loop sauntered around the corner. He approached with slight suspicion that seemed allayed by a casual glance, and moseyed on. A taxi unloaded a bewildered young couple at the Waldorf, across the way.

In making his turn, the driver winked and thumb-jerked toward them: "Just eloped to Greenwich!" They looked delightfully nuptial. New lives starting with a new day. As a stern partisan of reality, I wondered what the groom's salary was and how long before that first disillusioning quarrel!

Over by the side of Grand Central red caps were chirping in lively to and fro. One had been to a ball in Harlem. "Formalest you ever see" he as explaining. "Not even a tuxedo." In the great rotunda two sailors were propped against each other in sound snoring. A gentleman in bright, squeaky tan shoes puffing a cigar—and what a horrible hour to smoke!—was strolling up and down. Through a half-opened door of a telephone booth a woman was shouting: "It's in the second drawer of the bureau. Mail it to me at Fall River. Goodbye!" Someon: was yelling a train to Harrisburg, Altoona and Umfrayam—yaah. An attendant shook two weary casuals and they eeled toward train gates.

I'm one of life's innocents who cannot resist a weighing machine that catapults a fortune card upon registering weight. The beam quivered and came to a dead stop at 158, a gain of two pounds, and the card read: "You have remarkable talents for mechanics and inventions of all sort." Extravagant eulogy for a mug unable to fill a fountain pen or insert a new typewriter ribbon!

The dull rose tint of the Murray Hill hotel with its square and beautifully blue lamps out front is the back-log in the dying blaze of another day's aristocracy—an emotional nexus with crinolines, sidebar buggies and spanking bays. It's serenest in the shimmer of sunup and its spacious and venerable lobby suggests the snap of ivory snuffboxes and eyes behind the fan.

I tried to choose between breakfast and a barbershop. I blew hot at the prospective tingle of steaming towels and drifted for the first time in years into one across from the station. This was flirting with tonsorial gyppery—clip shops nestle near terminals—but I must have looked urban for the shave and massage was 55 cents. And I talked to a barber who is barbering to write. He has sold two stories to Adventure and a third has been seven weeks in a big magazine office. Omnious sign!

Butter cakes sopped in maple syrup in the clattery and spontaneous let-go of a Child's. Served by a personable maid who said her first name was Agalda, one I never heard before. Home at the surprised doorman's glance indicating: "On the loose, eh?" Anyway, I varied my routine.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Wisdom or Peace?

"I WANT TO LIVE!"

How often do you say that?

Not as often as you once did. When you were sixteen or seventeen, something within you sang it like a song—all the time. When you were twenty-five — something in you shouted it like a challenge, night and day. But, after thirty, the song grew dim. the shouting died away. You were too busy. Too worried. Or perhaps the world's din was too noisy in your ears.

Elsie Robinson

Yet you've never entirely forgotten your longing to live. Really live. Not just work and play, eat, sleep, make love; but to really discover what life is all about—what you, yourself, are all about.

"Oh, I'm sick of living like a white mouse!" you cry rebelliously. "Doing the same things day after day. It's all so stupid. It gets one nowhere. Life must hold more than this. Life must hold wonderful experiences—feelings I've never dreamed existed—thoughts I've never dared think. If I could only LIVE!"

There's a poem by Mary Whiteside—do you know it?

"Who has known heights and depths, shall not again
"Know peace; not as the calm heart knows
"Low, ivied walls; a garden close;
"The old enchantment of a rose.
"And though he tread the humble ways of men,
"He shall not speak the common tongue again.

Who has known heights, shall bear forevermore
"An incommunicable thing
"That hurts his heart, as a wing
"Beat at the portal, challenging.
"And yet—lured by the gleam his vision wore—
"Who once has trodden stars seeks peace or more."

"Who has known heights" . . . Those who really live know heights, know depths. But at such a price! What do they pay?

All those things which make life worth while for most of us.

FIRST OF ALL, COMFORT. You can never discover the heights or depths of life, and still hang on to your comfort, any more than you can climb Alps and still sit in a rocking chair. First, you'll get uncomfortable inside; then you'll be uncomfortable outside. None of your old thoughts will fit you any longer—none of your old prejudices or habits. Everything will be changed. All the old things must go to make way for new things.

AND WITH YOUR COMFORT, WILL GO YOUR CONCEIT.

AND THEN TO THAT THERE WILL BE ADDED LONELINESS. For people who really want to live are never popular, and the reason is plain—THEY MAKE LIFE UNCOMFORTABLE FOR ALL THE OTHER LAZY, TIMID, CONCEITED SOULS ON EARTH. So why should they receive applause for being a pain in the neck?

The answer is—they don't.

Yes, of one thing you may be sure. "Who has known heights and depths shall not again know peace."

That is the price of "really living."

And what do you buy for that price?

A glimpse of Beauty. A longing for Justice. A fury for Decency and Order. A reverence for Love—and the terrible, priceless gift of Freedom.

Blurred visions, which will haunt and upset you all your life.

Just Folks

Purpose

We plague ourselves with endless needs.
We build our hopes and dreams on things
We seek in muscle-straining deeds
A satisfaction prowess brings.
In pomp and pride
The world we stride
And call it failure to be meek,
While day by day
Along life's way
Are countless joys we need not seek.

So thick with wants we've sown our years
That few of us brief rest can find.
In running first success appears.
'Tis failure grim to lag behind.
Yet life is sweet
And all complete
For those who dare a slower pace,
While rest at night
And true delight
Lend beauty to the commonplace.

Who knows what God shall deem success?
Great wealth and fame and buildings tall
To which men turn for happiness
May not suit His design at all.
And it may be
That we shall see,
When time and toil on earth are through,
The will to share
Life's common care
Is all God wished from me and you.
